

THE SILENT MASSACRE

ELECTRONIC TORTURE AND MIND CONTROL IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND LAW ENFORCEMENT COMPLICITY

(Max H. Williams, Monroe, Louisiana, USA, 2008-2009)

Author's Note

In recent years, scientists have learned how to locate, focus on, and lock onto a person's brain by remote to manipulate that person's thoughts and thus his actions. Mind control assaults now loom as one of the main challenges of the 21st century. The targeted person often never discovers that he has become a mind control victim, and he ends up hurting others, taking his own life, or simply becoming another "Alzheimer" statistic. This paper discusses some of the elements of what I call electronic stalking and mind control (ESMC).

While writing this paper, the people who monitor me electronically and continually interfere with my computer and emails and tap my phones often entered my PC to make changes in the narrative to discourage me and try to make me look crazy. Keeping the paper intact and ensuring accuracy have been a constant battle. Even now, after finishing the paper, when I go back to add a salient point, I often find that a portion has been altered or deleted. Powerful forces do not want papers such as this one written and disseminated.

Fortunately the internet brings together targeted individuals (TIs) of electronic torture and mind control from all conceivable backgrounds. Race and ethnicity, color, gender, religion, politics, philosophical views, and all other human characteristics and thought fade into obscurity as targets unite to conquer their unseen enemies. This paper is written principally for those victims.

Some readers may find this paper objectionable when I talk about who initiated my ESMC and who probably continues to manage it by proxy. Nevertheless, I hope that the reader can get past those objections and read the entire content. Targeted individuals will readily identify with what I talk about in this paper. Those who are not TIs but who are intellectually curious about electronic and mind control assault will learn much about a sick attack on tens of thousands of targets that also indirectly affects everybody in those targets' lives.

The human resources and the enormous cost required to carry out electronic stalking and mind control, re-enforced in many cases by gang stalking, almost certainly limit its use to governments. Only governments can mobilize the enormous outlay of funds and successfully camouflage the use of those funds. Only governments have the sophisticated equipment and computers required for electronic abuse and mind control. Only governments can train in secrecy the cadre of handlers who administer the electronic assault and mind control activities, using deception and psychology. Even mega corporations and businesses would not be able to carry out electronic assault and mind control in secrecy unless they did so under cover of government work and with government protection. Several countries, including the United States of America, have experimented with directed energy weaponry and mind control for many years.

Background

Everybody who realizes that he has become a targeted individual for electronic stalking and mind control has his story. However, he usually has no idea who might have targeted him. In my case, overwhelming evidence points clearly to the perpetrators of my electronic stalking and mind control. The Israelis or pro-Israel elements of the U. S. Government targeted me in a South American country no later than the mid-1970's. Let me back up to explain.

I was working for the U. S. Government in South America when the 1973 Arab-Israeli War broke out. As a Ph.D. in history, I like to do my own analyses of events instead of accepting the media's and the government's versions; thus, I began looking into the background of the conflict, including all three Arab-Israeli Wars.

While conducting research, I became intrigued by Israel's air attack on the U.S.S. Liberty during the 1967 Arab-Israeli War. In that attack, Israel used unmarked aircraft, supported by Israeli torpedo boats, to strafe and bomb the Liberty, killing thirty-seven American sailors. (In contrast, the attack on the U.S.S. Cole in 2000 by Arab extremists killed only seventeen American sailors. Guess which incident the media played up.) Investigators found that Israel clearly knew that the plainly-marked Liberty was American and sought to blame their attack on Egypt; nevertheless, the United States accepted Israel's claim that it was an accident.

As a result of my research on Arab-Israeli relations, I came to see that Israel was not at all the poor beleaguered nation that U. S. media portrayed but instead pursued internal and foreign policies that caused almost all of the Middle East problems. I also realized for the first time that the media in the United States skews information concerning Israel to place that nation in the most favorable light. On the other hand, it rarely if ever says anything positive about Arabs or Moslems.

Shortly after my "enlightenment," pro-Israel Americans with whom I worked started testing my views. Were it not for their attempts to intimidate me, I may have become only moderately anti-Israel. As it was, I became increasingly vocal in expressing my condemnation of Israel's policies.

One day as I left from work and was walking home, a swarthy, middle-aged, rather short man fell into step with me on the crowded sidewalk. He sidled up closer to me as we walked and said in a perfectly American-sounding accent, "The Jews control the United States." Completely taken aback by his statement, I stammered my protests. Then, just as suddenly as he had appeared, he disappeared into the crowd. No inhabitant of that country would have had the slightest interest in my feelings about Jews. The man was probably either Israeli or a pro-Israel agent of United States intelligence. That encounter strangely coincided with an official visit to that country by an American Jew from the Department of State who had close ties to Israel.

Only recently have I remembered that in that same country in about 1976 or 1977, I was suddenly struck with a sense of unnatural overwhelming gloom while in my bedroom at night before retiring. I had always been an optimistic, outgoing person and had never had feelings of that type. The sensation returned time after time. In retrospect, I believe that somebody was either attempting to take over my mind or that it had already been "hooked." The perpetrators were doubtlessly trying to induce anxiety. (More about that later.) The undeveloped country in which I was working had absolutely no reason or the wherewithal to target me.

In 1978, I was assigned to a different South American country. One of the national employees who worked in my section was a Jewish woman who had worked with the Israeli Consulate before that office closed, and then she began working with the U. S. representation in that country. One day when I had a problem with a molar, I asked that person to recommend a dentist. She referred me to an older German Jewish "dentist," who supposedly did a root canal on that tooth. An older woman, perhaps his wife, served as his assistant in a stark room of their dark, unpleasant-looking residence.

After retirement, in the 1990's, I went to an American dentist with problems with the same molar on which the South American dentist had supposedly performed the root canal. The local dentist found in the tooth a tiny cylindrical pin-like object. At the time, I thought little of it. However, now in retrospect, that little object had to be a tiny "bug." The South American dentist also wanted to place a filling in-between my two front teeth, claiming that there was decay between the teeth. He obviously intended to implant an incredibly tiny camera in that location, for thirty years later those two teeth remain perfectly sound.

I liked the employee who recommended the dentist, and at the time I had no reason at all to doubt that she was just a nice, friendly national employee who happened to be Jewish and who happened to find work with the U. S. Government. When other employees reported to me that she got to the office early in the morning before I arrived to go through the papers in my desk, I dismissed those charges as simply tales manufactured out of jealousy. After I left the country for another assignment, that employee lost her job. Although I had given her excellent performance evaluations, she told others that I caused her to be fired. In actuality, I did not find out that she had been dismissed until much later. In hind sight, I believe that her guilt convinced her that I had found out about her duplicity. Apparently that employee did not stop working with the Israelis when she took the job with the U. S. Government.

In the 1970's, Israeli Nazi hunters were still active in South America. The "dentist" probably worked with them, and the employee in my office may have also cooperated in the hunt. One of the contractors who worked with the American Government and who alternated between Argentina and the country in which I was assigned was known to be associated with that group. The U. S. Government, in fact, cooperated with and helped fund the Nazi hunters. The "Nazis" probably included anybody who opposed Israel and its pro-Israel factions.

The minuscule device implanted by the dentist in South America in the late 1970's may have had only limited capability. It was undoubtedly used to listen to my conversations as well as perhaps to track my movements. Since that time, however, much more sophisticated, high-tech, intelligence-gathering and mind control equipment and software have been developed, tested, and put into operation.

Over the years, I have continued to speak out against Israel's foreign policy and our support for it. In the 1970's, I defended the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) when it was still considered a renegade group, and in 1984 I became a member of the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee at a time when Americans were being led by the U. S. media down the anti-Moslem path. I never occupied an important decision-making position in the government; yet, to the Israelis, an enemy is an enemy, regardless of his rank. I articulate my thoughts, and my friends respect my opinions. Thus, I am a threat.

In the early to mid-1980's, I served in Washington, DC, where my anti-Israel views became widely known in my work venue. In that city, I subscribed to a small, openly anti-Israel newspaper called The Spotlight, which often relayed negative doings by Israel that would never have been published in the mainline media. Every subscriber to The Spotlight, now defunct, got a place on the pro-Israel hit list. While in Washington, the IRS, which represents a very powerful pro-Israel tool of the powerbrokers, audited me twice consecutively.

In 1985, I was reassigned to an African post. Several years later, on the eve of the Gulf War, when it looked like President George Bush (the elder) planned to attack Saddam Hussein, I objected to that action. Taking advantage of a process known as the "dissent channel," in which American government employees abroad may express opposition to U. S. foreign policy, I sent several cables to the Secretary of State. In those cables, I stated my opposition to the war and charged that the principal reason for the U. S. attacking Hussein was not to assist Kuwait but to fight a proxy war for Israel to maintain Israeli hegemony in the Middle East. However, the media had already pumped up the American public to support the so-called Gulf War. I was among only a handful of thoughtful Americans who opposed that war, and I am quite sure that my opposition became duly noted by pro-Israel factions within U. S. intelligence as well as the Israelis. Those people doubtlessly placed me on a "watch" list.

My cables criticizing both the U. S. and Israel for their Middle East policies may have triggered much more advanced electronic surveillance. My hind-sight observations tell me that probably in the early 1990's pro-Israel elements within the FBI took over my surveillance from the original perpetrators when I retired and returned to the United States, probably on the pretended grounds that I was a subversive and a suspected terrorist. Their mind control assault on me probably began in the late 1980's or early-1990's and increased in intensity over the last ten to fifteen years.

In thinking back over events, I recall that in Africa in the late 1980's, I heard at night while trying to sleep what sounded like a ball being bounced on a hard surface. I asked the night watchman if he had been bouncing a ball, perhaps out of boredom, and he told me that he had not. I knew that he was telling me the truth. Very obviously the sounds were intended to disturb my sleep or they were inadvertently done by the device used to monitor me. In other words, I had already been targeted for mind control.

When I retired in 1991, I continued speaking out against Israel in conversations with friends and in letters to editors of newspapers. I knew that elements in U. S. intelligence loyal to Israel had placed me on their hit list and that they were following my activities. After retiring, I continued to travel abroad occasionally, usually to Central America, where I owned property. Once when I returned to the Houston international airport from one of the trips, a rookie immigration official processed my entry. A veteran officer stood nearby. When the rookie scanned my passport and viewed his monitor, he looked perplexed. He turned to the older officer and pointed to something on his monitor that he obviously did not understand. The veteran officer took a quick look and said, "ADOD" (Advise Department of Defense).

My computer has been hacked and my phone tapped for years. A recent accidental discovery strongly suggests that the hackers and phone tappers are Federal agents or foreign agents working with the permission of U. S. intelligence. Here is what happened. One day I entered my email Sent File to copy a paragraph that I had written to a correspondent about the tiny device having been implanted in a molar while living in South America in 1978. I cut and pasted that paragraph and re-sent it. Because my computer is monitored and my emails sometimes deleted or changed, I went back to the Sent box to see if the message had actually gone out. When I opened the sent message, I was astonished to see three words encased in blue-lined rectangular boxes: ISRAEL, MIDDLE EAST, and SOUTH AMERICA.

As a former government employee, let me explain why those three areas were highlighted. Intelligence organizations in every country divide their offices into geographical areas, including Israel, Middle East, and South America. Copies of my email went to those three offices in some intelligence agency in some country. Every U. S. law intelligence agency, including the Department of State and other agencies, has personnel sections that deal with regional affairs. Whoever monitors my email spotted my references to Israel, the Middle East, and South America and marked that email for copies to be sent to those regional affairs offices. I suspect that copies not only went to U. S. intelligence agencies but also to the Mossad.

The secret monitors never imagined that I would go back into a previously sent letter to cut and paste. Finding the highlighted words was a total accident, but a very fortunate one for me, for it told me that somebody monitors my email correspondence and that he is not looking for kiddy porn, drug, and money laundering rings but for material dealing with political views. After passage of the so-called Patriot Act, anybody working with the FBI can justify monitoring a citizen's email and tapping his phones without getting judicial approval.

Later, to make their flub-up appear to be a computer glitch or a common internet action, the same monitors encircled other words on several other letters; however, when they saw that I had not fallen for that deception, they quit doing it. In view of the fraternal cooperation between the FBI/CIA and the Mossad, the monitor of my emails could be an agent of the latter. What I do not know is the location of the person who monitors my computer, as computers can be hacked from anywhere in the world, including Monroe, Louisiana, where I live, New York City, or Tel Aviv.

Freedom of expression in the United States seemingly comes at a price. Although I have never belonged to the Ku Klux Klan, the Aryan Brotherhood, the Survivalists, or any other extremist organization, I have openly and consistently condemned Israel. As an American, I thought that I had the right to do so. Apparently I was wrong. One can publicly criticize England, France, Mexico, or any other country in the world -- except Israel. The media, the clergy, and especially politicians on every level carefully avoid any negative criticism of Israel.

That point is supported by Israeli spokeswoman Tzipora Menache, who was reported in a February 1, 2009 article as saying, "You know very well, and the stupid Americans know equally well, that we [the Israelis] control their government, irrespective of who sits in the White House We control congress, we control the media, we control show biz, and we control everything in America. IN AMERICA YOU CAN CRITICIZE GOD, BUT YOU CAN'T CRITICIZE ISRAEL." But I do.

Unfortunately for Americans, the Israeli woman was correct. Today in the United States, one hears and reads in the media discussions on abortion, the death penalty, the legalization of marijuana, U. S. politicians, religious beliefs and their leaders, sex of all descriptions, the Iraq War, autism and every type of mental disorder, and other sometimes divisive and intimate topics. I defy the reader to provide a reference to a meaningful debate on Israel's actions and policies in the United States during the last fifty years. Moreover, one can verbally express doubt about the divinity of Christ or the existence of God or the holiness of the Pope or the sanctity of the Bible but he cannot doubt the Zionist version of the WWII European holocaust.

Having always considered myself a fervently patriotic citizen, I smolder at being made a surveillance target and now a target of electronic torture and mind control because of my personal and political views. If communication with radical and terrorist groups is the only object of my surveillance, that surveillance would have concluded years ago that I am not a domestic terrorist or a threat to the United States of America. That suggests that I am perceived by either pro-Israel U. S. intelligence or Israeli intelligence as a threat to Israel and thus the reason for my surveillance. The aim of Israel and its pro-Israel American accomplices is to stifle any opposition at all in the United States – and worldwide -- to Israel, and American intelligence appears only too ready to lend assistance toward that objective.

A very large number of presidential political appointees are ardently pro-Israel, and they even use their diplomatic positions to back Israel's agenda. The American ambassador in an African country in which I served, who happened to be Jewish, told newly assigned employees point blank in an initial briefing that a part of our duty was to support Israel's interests. I could hardly believe my ears. His remark was clearly intended for me. Knowing my political views, he may have been baiting me to openly protest his orders and thus give him reason to send me back to the United States.

That ambassador, a political appointee, left shortly after I arrived. His replacement was a female career diplomat, who was very evenhanded concerning Israel's interests in that county. To her credit, she sent back to the United States an American Foreign Service Officer, a Jew married to an Israeli Jewish woman, who used an Israeli car and driver to commute to and from work, for his blatant connection to a foreign country. I had worked previously with that officer in Washington and actually liked that person. He had remarked on one occasion that he had his bags packed for an anti-Jewish, holocaust-type movement that was bound to happen in the United States, a comment that made me question his loyalty to the United States.

That Israel views any anti-Zionist views as dangerous and attempts to silence those views is obvious. That pro-Israel organizations in the U. S. such as the Jewish Defense League (JDL) and the Anti-Defamation League (ADL) perform unlawful acts to advance Israel's agenda is indisputable. That Israel and its U. S. backers have reason to want me and others silenced is readily evident. They are masters, however, in using misinformation and developing schemes to get others to perform their dirty work while they sit and watch several layers removed from the action. They discover the target's vulnerabilities and then farm them out to pro-Israel PACs, Christian Fundamentalist Zionists, and plain hirelings, who, without ideals and agendas, simply work for the money.

Such is the control by Israel and its supporters over the U. S. Government that today we do not have a U. S. Middle East foreign policy. Instead, our Middle East policy is Israel's Middle East policy. Every serious candidate for U. S. president today must extol Israel's position as the "Middle East's only democracy," and our foremost ally. Those candidates even have to make a symbolic trip to Israel to pay homage to that country and seek the blessing of its prime minister for his/her candidacy before the election.

This paper is not about Israel; nevertheless, I feel compelled to make several observations about Israel, as Americans will never see anything critical of Israel in the controlled mainline U. S. media: (1) Israel often “creates” its enemies to justify its agenda, knowing full well that the United States will back it. Despite the media hype, the facts show that Israel has made no genuine effort to make peace with its neighbors. On the contrary, through its actions it has ensured continued Arab and Moslem hostility. (2) Israel purposefully engenders the belief that it is surrounded by hostile forces, as it unites the Western world in its support and opens pocketbooks on its behalf. Indeed, the U. S. provides no-strings budget support for Israel that far exceeds the entire budgets of most developing countries.

(3) American politicians and the press tout Israel as one of the United States’ staunchest allies; yet, Israel employs spies in the United States. Several spies for Israel have been caught in the last few years and incarcerated only later to be pardoned by the president or otherwise quietly released later by our government to Israel. (4) Israel uses its pro-Israel supporters in the United States, not all Jews by any means, to promote its plans for Middle East domination using American resources. We have already fought two proxy wars for Israel (the Gulf War and the Iraq War) and intervened in Somalia, Sudan, Libya, Yemen, Lebanon, and other Middle Eastern and African countries in support of Israel’s foreign policy. In addition, we have lost scores of American soldiers when Islamic bombers blew up barracks in two Arab countries (Lebanon and Saudi Arabia) and attacked the U.S.S. Cole near Yemen because of our unswerving support for Israel. (5) Israel is one of the biggest exporters of small arms and assault weapons, many of which end up in the hands of gang members on American streets and along the Mexican border.

Now, substitute the word Venezuela, Iran, Cuba, or North Korea for the word Israel and substitute the word Moslem for Jew in the preceding paragraphs, and that narrative appears perfectly in keeping with what the controlled U. S. media lead Americans to believe. Yet, many Christian Fundamentalists and Jewish supporters of Israel, along with the majority of well meaning but thoroughly brainwashed Americans, will call the content of what I have just written hate and anti-Semitic propaganda. Israel and its pro-Israel allies in the United States have successfully used accusations of anti-Semitism to squelch vocal opposition to Israel and its objectives. Today Americans are afraid to speak out, fearing the stigma and the consequences of being labeled anti-Semitic. Moreover, Israel and its American supporters have bought every Congressperson and politician in the United States either materially or politically. I am not bothered by people’s opinions of my views. If I were, I would have kept quiet many years ago and today I probably would not be a target of electronic and mind control activities. Now back to the topic.

The Discovery

Although it is now obvious that I had been targeted since the mid-1970’s, I did not discover it until December 7, 2005, when my assailants, or handlers, started bombarding me with electrical-like jolts, strong vibrations, and other physical torture.

The first vibrations struck me with such force that I could hardly stand on my feet. I gradually learned that the physical electronic effects, although annoying and painful, were simply used to “soften” or “sensitize” or “pre-condition” me for the real objective – mind control. I later learned that victims are normally targeted for years before they finally realize it. Some targets suffer physical attacks for years and visit doctors frequently without realizing that their symptoms are not natural.

Four days after the electronic attack, the handlers, began “talking” to me subliminally through my brain. I later discovered that TIs call that communication voice-to-skull, or V2K. Of course, only I could hear their talking. At the time that the ESMC hurled me into reality, I was sixty-eight years old and in exceptional physical and mental health. Although I was initially startled by the “voice-to-brain” communication, I knew full well that I was not paranoid-schizophrenic. As an historian and former government employee, I understand the value of documentation. Thus, on the very day that the electronic effects first pounded me, I started recording a detailed journal in which I recount my experiences and my thoughts concerning that topic. The journal today comprises six volumes and about a thousand pages of single spaced typescript.

The voices occurred as I drove in Texas near the Mexican border. When I reached Baton Rouge, Louisiana, I sought out a private detective who did a bug sweep on my vehicle without finding anything. A few days later, I went to a dentist and requested that he take full x-rays of my teeth and mouth. He saw nothing unusual in the x-rays. I did not either at the time, as I was looking for a clearly visible, well-defined object; however, in May of 2009 I found those same x-rays and looked at them very closely. In the roof of my mouth were two tiny specks of what looked to be the same metallic substance used for fillings. In my gums was a very slender, light-colored, cylindrical-shaped sliver of some object. Those objects are still unidentified.

I do not yet know how the perpetrators of the electronic and mind control assault “hooked” my brain by remote. I have had many inoculations, much dental work, and several minor medical procedures performed over the years in various locations. However, as the reader will later see, whatever method was used, it had been employed in my case by the early 1990’s and probably long before, perhaps even dating back to the early- or mid-1970’s.

Targets and Non-targets

Shortly after starting my journal, I began researching the topic and communicating with many other victims. Almost invariably those victims, like I, had ignored signs of electronic stalking and did not realize for a very long time that they had been targeted. That is one of the techniques that the stalkers use. The electronic torture and mind control activities are “progressive.” Electronic and mind control stalkers begin very slowly and gradually increase the intensity of the electronic and mind control effects until finally they are too obvious for targets to ignore. Although many of the effects are similar, they do vary from target to target. Many of the targets, for example, do not hear the voices. Nevertheless, they are there. (More about voices later.)

Through my subsequent research and communications with victims, I learned that stalkers may target any person regardless of race, ethnicity, gender, social and economic status, religion, or age. Most of the targets are just plain law-abiding citizens who mind their own business. A few others had served time in prison for non-violent crimes. ESMC is not peculiar to only the United States. People in countries all over the world are reporting electronic and neurological assaults. However, this paper deals with only that which occurs in the United States.

Strangely and perhaps suspiciously, some Americans appear exempt from electronic harassment and mind control: (1) Congresspersons and high ranking U. S. Government officials, including ambassadors. Lower ranking employees and ex-employees of government, however, are often targeted, especially “whistleblowers” and those discontented with the status quo. Postal workers very often become targets, which very well may explain the shooting sprees and rampages of some of those employees. (2) High ranking state-level officials. (3) The clergy, although members of Fundamentalist Protestant and Roman Catholic churches often become targets. Some of those victims complain that their churches may be involved in their harassment. (4) Law enforcement officers. Although I have heard obliquely of police officers being electronically assaulted, I have never actually corresponded with or read a complaint by a law enforcement target. The exclusion also applies to prison authorities, U. S. marshals, Border Patrol, DEA, the entire U. S. intelligence community, including the Secret Service, sheriffs, and sheriff’s deputies. (5) CEOs and very successful businesspersons. (6) High ranking military officials. Enlisted personnel are often targets; however, I have never seen any material about officer-level personnel having been targeted. (7) The medical community. (8) The wealthy. I have never read anything about a millionaire having been victimized by ESMC. Most of the targets are middle-class workers, small business owners, retirees, and sometimes financially- and socially-marginal persons. (9) Judges and lawyers. The perpetrators know that judges and lawyers possess credibility and also know the laws and would thus be able to leverage law enforcement into action. (10) Persons with expertise in radio and electronics, who could perhaps eventually figure out what device is being used and how.

There are two logical and plausible reasons why most of those particular people are not targeted: (1) They are a part of the conspiracy, either directly or indirectly, and thus protected. (2) The perpetrators know that those targeted groups would possess the intellectual credibility and the power to command investigations of their attacks.

Foreign countries have attempted to influence U. S. domestic and foreign policy for decades through political action committees (PACs). They still do that. However, now several foreign countries have the capability to perform electronic stalking and mind control activities for that purpose. Logically, those foreign countries will target the following Americans: (1) the sitting president and possible candidates for the presidency; (2) key members of Congress; (3) top U. S. military brass; (4) CEOs of large companies, particularly those firms with defense contracts; (5) selected clergy;

(6) writers, producers, and media personnel; and (7) other influential persons. Can there be any doubt, then, that our CIA/FBI and other intelligence services do not know about electronic stalking and mind control and protect those probable targets, especially those seen in Numbers 1-3, from that activity?

Theories of Methods Used in ESMC

It is indisputable that electronic and mind control assault operates by remote. That means that some object makes contact with the human body over a distance through the air. Thus, whatever method is used must operate along some type of frequency. Almost anything today can be controlled by remote using particular radio frequencies: satellites; rocket ships; less sophisticated free flying machines like military spy drones; garage doors, and indeed almost any other motorized equipment. To allow those frequencies to contact it, the human body must carry in or on it some object, substance, or characteristic that will attract those frequencies. Evidence of that is seen in a target's being vibrated while in the presence of other people without the others feeling it. In my case, certain voice inflections and tones of narrators on TV also cause jolts in my body; those sounds could only come from electromagnetic waves or frequencies.

Satellites now possess amazing capabilities, all performed by remote, and they may very well be utilized in electronic assaults and mind control. In a 2003 article called Shocking Menace of Satellite Surveillance, John Fleming wrote about the use of satellites in ESMC assault. Discussing the realities of satellite-driven ESMC, Fleming said: "The victim's movements will be known, his conversations heard, his thoughts picked clean, and his whole life subjected to bogus moralizing, should his tormentor diabolically use the information gained. A sadist could harass his target with sound bites, or audio messages, directly broadcast into his room; with physical assault with a laser; with subliminal audio messages that disturb his sleep or manipulate persons around him into saying something that emotionally distresses him . . ." The GPS almost certainly figures somehow in the electronic assault and mind control activities. Programs such as Google Earth pinpoint houses and other objects on maps. Users can zoom in on those structures and focus on them. At any rate, that a victim can be targeted regardless of his location and movement argues that a satellite must be involved.

This paper does not explore in depth the methods used to zero in on a person's mind. There are many schools of thought on that subject. Here are some of them.

One popular theory states that victims are implanted with microchips. Scores of patents dealing with microchips in the human body have indeed been filed, many of which, in the wrong hands, could be utilized for electronic abuse. I have read of only one person who supposedly located microchips in his body, had them surgically removed, and then had them identified. My efforts to contact that individual failed. In my opinion, his claims have not been authenticated. We know, however, that many forms of microchips have been developed for the human body, most of them capable of being controlled by remote.

If indeed microchips turn out to be instrumental in a target's electronic assault and mind control, it directly implicates the medical profession. Those microchips had to have been implanted at some point by a dentist, a doctor, an anesthetist, a nurse, or somebody else in that field. Is that perhaps why a target experiences so much difficulty in getting a doctor's order for a CT Scan or an MRI? Is that why surgeons are so reluctant to remove foreign objects located by MRIs and CT Scans?

Another theory believes that voices can be recorded, transferred to a computer, and the computer then used to lock onto that person's brain. Experiments show that that can indeed be done. However, for a computer to connect with the brain requires some type of catalyst. One day when the handlers were vibrating me mercilessly, I tensed my throat, and the vibrations stopped. That caused me to remember an incident that occurred when I served in Africa in the 1980's. One day while working in my office, the secretary from the embassy political section, the office that serves as a front for our CIA agents, called me to ask some question that anyone could have answered. I hardly knew the caller; thus, I instantly realized that the real purpose of her call was to record my voice. However, I believed that it was probably for security purposes in case of kidnap or being held hostage at some point. That our intelligence community was recording voices in the 1980's makes me believe that there may be some validity to the theory that perpetrators of ESMC may be able to "hook" our brains by zeroing in on our voices. Voices give off distinct vibrations that are as peculiar to a person as his fingerprints and DNA.

Some evidence also suggests that targets' minds can be "hooked" if the handlers know the targets' DNA. If that is true, targets would not necessarily have to have a microchip or other object or substance in his body to be hooked. There may be some remote device that with the aid of the GPS will locate a person and "hook" him using his DNA. If DNA can be utilized, society is in deep trouble, for obtaining DNA samples of people is a very simple matter. Even touching a glass or a can will leave useable traces of DNA.

Still another theory talks about small devices (nano-microchips) made so small that they can fit between molecules of water and other liquids and be injected into the body in shots and inoculations. Patents taken out by scientists describe that very procedure. Other theories include wiring in the ear that connects with the brain, pins that penetrate the skull, and some type of substance ingested into the body through normal food and drink.

There is also evidence that even human breath or breathing somehow figures in electronic torture and mind control. Yet, we do not know whether it has any connection with "hooking" a target's brain. I tend to believe that the breath, or perhaps the movement caused by breathing, enables or aids the handlers' device, for I much later found out that when I hold my breath for a few seconds, the vibrations temporarily cease.

In addition, MRI machines have been successfully combined with computers and used by remote along radio frequencies to move digits and limbs, detect emotions, and “detect lying, racism, and even identify which image a person is looking at, suggesting [that] one could visualize scenes from a person’s dreams or memory” (Hospital Soup.com, June 10, 2008). The uses of a device such as that are endless if used on the brain’s wave lengths or frequencies.

Similarly, neurotransmitters can be used by remote to communicate with brain cells through electrical impulses. That device can tap into the brain’s functions that cause body movement, thought, feelings (emotions), and communication. It could probably also influence the thalamus, or the inner part of the brain, which regulates body temperature and controls urges such as eating, sleeping, and sexual behavior.

Laser guns may play a role in ESMC. A CNN news program on February 23, 2009, reported that 148 incidents of lasers aimed at airplanes had already been reported since the beginning of the year. In the last incident, the laser was green in color and about the size of a pencil. If a laser beam can be focused to such a fine point over several miles of distance, imagine what it could do when trained on an individual or an object over a period of time.

Mounting evidence suggests that a substance or an object can also be introduced sexually into a target’s body to “hook” his or her brain. Several of my correspondents mention that their ESMC began after having had an intimate relationship with somebody. Those relationships may have been set-ups. Spies and undercover agents often use sex to entrap individuals. Some such object or substance could possibly be introduced into targets vaginally, orally, or anally through sexual contact.

All that said, pick a theory. In truth, we do not yet actually know how high-tech assailants capture a victim’s mind; neither do we know what instruments are used in the process. Both are highly guarded secrets shrouded in deception. In fact, there may be several methods of “hooking” the target.

Whatever device is used to “hook” the brain, it has the capability of using that system on diverse targets in a variety of circumstances in all types of locations. A computer is used along with the device, and it has an amazing range of capabilities. We shall later see some of those capabilities and the effects they have on the human body and mind. Whatever device and method that are used to “hook” the brains of the targets, I suspect that when we discover the truth – and we will – the system will probably turn out to be far less sophisticated than we imagined, perhaps a laser gun used with the GPS along a certain frequency or something similar. And I also suspect that to train that device on a particular target does indeed require a foreign object or substance in or on that person’s body.

In my case, most of the symptoms occur on and around my head, which leads me to believe that if there is indeed an object in my body, probably located in that region. Here are some of the effects on my head: tinnitus (ringing in the ears); tops of ears oozing a colorless fluid; sensation of bubbles popping in mouth; salivating from the mouth at any time; pin pricks on the eyes and a loss of vision; the top of the nose coating over with a thick crust; tingling on the skin (as a result a brown spot has appeared on the right outside nostril and a sore-type depression, on the right side of my chin); clicking on my head and in my left ear; frequent, long-lasting, pin-like prick on the back of my neck; the sensation of flies crawling on my face; a psoriasis-like area on my cheek near the left eye; a very sharp sensation on or in several teeth (as if a dentist drill had hit a nerve); a heavy pounding, throbbing in the back of my head; an unnaturally intense itching in the corners of my eyes and on my eyelids; pin-like pricks in the depths of my ears that cause me to shudder violently; air that pushes my lips out as if I were snoring through my mouth; scratching of the throat, which causes either sneezing or coughing; a tingling inside my nostril that induces sneezing; blockage in my esophagus that makes it difficult to swallow; constant itching inside my nostrils that makes me want to “pick” my nose; and of course the voices that occur in my brain or ears. (More about symptoms later.)

Deception

The attackers, or handlers, use deception to reinforce mind control. Many of the physical symptoms that handlers cause in targets are merely deceptions. When a victim is struck with ESMC, he first believes that the objective is to torture him physically. Although the handlers gleefully apply the torture techniques, their real objective is mind control. Through voice-to-skull (V2K) contact, the handlers can manipulate the target without the target being aware of it.

In aiming their voices to the targets’ ears, the handlers will use a local accent. However, local handlers will probably not be highly trained in deception, which means that the handlers are probably not local. I suspect that the handlers are trained employees of national intelligence, the military, and perhaps companies involved in defense, universities and private labs that provide technology to our government or foreign governments – fulltime and occupational handlers. It is possible that wealthy individuals, religious groups, and other organizations could have been provided or somehow gotten access to that secret technology by now. If that is a possibility, local handlers could have received training. Nevertheless, even if local handlers are used, they have to be tied in to a central super computer. Only the government would probably own such computers.

Quite a few correspondents who have been targeted and who communicated telepathically with the handler perverts stated that the handlers sometimes attempted to convince them to cooperate with them. In several cases, the handlers have tried to convert the targets into good “Christians,” which, considering the cruelty and unlawfulness of those “Christians,” is a real joke. In my case, the handlers often show me holographic pictures of a man in robes who is generally believed by Christians to be Jesus and tell me that I am going to hell. Again, that is total deception. I taunt them that the picture was not autographed.

A whistleblower who worked with the U. S. National Security Agency under a defense contract wrote in an internet article: “. . . the subject is unknowingly given hypnosis while the subject is completely awake and is tortured and punished with this hypnosis into a predetermined behavior by the National Security Agency; . . . the behavior is usually extremely religious, is called ‘reborn’ by the church, with the subject’s life-long goal of ‘a personal relationship with Jesus Christ.’” The NSA uses this technology [electronic torture and mind control] to resocialize (brainwash) the US civilian . . . population.”

That aim may be the link between the government and Fundamentalist preachers. It is worthwhile noting that many Christian churches today receive government grants, an act once believed to violate the principle of separation of church and state, which began in the 1970’s. When I ask TIs to describe their symptoms, when those symptoms began, and their general physical environment, they very often mention that a Fundamentalist minister lives next door, across the street, or very nearby. A law enforcement officer will also often live very close.

I can tell the reader that the handlers themselves are most definitely NOT traditional Christians and could not possibly be truly religious in any fashion. Yet, they deceptively try to give their evil practices a façade of morality and piety. Handlers will also try to convince the targets that they are of particular ethnic groups, e.g., Latinos, East Indians, Afro-Americans. They reinforce that deception through “wrong number” telephone calls posing as persons of those ethnic groups. I continually get “wrong number” calls from black- and Latino-sounding people from various area codes in the United States.

Even the emphasis on sex is deceptive. Handlers find out a target’s sexual thoughts and preferences, and they fully exploit that knowledge. However, although they are born voyeurs and get much pleasure out of harassing a target with induced sexual thoughts and images, sex is not their objective. They know that their knowledge of a target’s sexual thoughts shatters a target’s self-esteem and well being, and they use it as a tool to induce anxiety, confusion, fright, frustration, and humiliation.

The handlers also deceive through playing “good cop-bad cop.” My handlers almost always deride my work efforts and methods in their subliminal talking as I carry out home improvement projects. They taunt and belittle me as I work. Then, after a few minutes of blustering and disparaging the activity, one of the perverts will make a very complimentary remark about some aspect of the work. I am supposed to warm up to that individual. To an educated target, their psychology is juvenile. I call it “pre-nursery school psychology.”

Impostors

Impostors flood the internet with misinformation on ESMC to throw victims and researchers off track. Every intelligence agency has an operational section whose aim is to spread false propaganda. The propaganda machine spreads misinformation over the internet through several types of “plants” in the media, for example

(1) Webmaster “plants” working for the perpetrators use the internet to spread erroneous and misleading information. Those liars pretend that they were abducted by aliens, tormented by people who look like lizards, and subjected to rituals performed by Reptilians. They link ESMC with UFOs. One of the favorite lies is that a group of families called the Illuminati seeks to control the world. More recently, the misinformation agents have convinced many targets that they come from a particular genetic strain or blood line and were thus targeted before or from birth. Many of the TIs who actually believe those things are very well meaning and have been convinced of those inaccurate concepts through voice-to-brain emissions. That is exactly why we call that activity “mind control.”

(2) Internet blogger “plants” strew erroneous material in their online blogs.

(3) TI “plants” in various internet forums write pedantic emails, oftentimes belittling authentic TIs and refer other viewers to lies disseminated in bogus web sites and other locations. Some of those “plants” relate convincing stories; however, eventually they trip over their many lies and astute TIs can pick them out of the crowd.

(4) Author “plants” also produce misinformation published in on-line articles, in magazines, and even in books about electronic assault and mind control. In addition to the intentional and purposeful impostors, jokesters often write garbage-filled letters to real TIs and post erroneous material on web sites.

Now, not all of the information spread on the internet, in articles and books, and by internet correspondents is false by any means. Even many of the people who spread misinformation and disinformation are very sincere. I do not pretend to be expert in determining which information is false and which is true; however, I have learned that much of it is utter bullshit. Electronic assault and mind control itself is incredible enough without being compounded by deliberate lies disseminated by the ESMC perpetrators.

Let me be perfectly clear. The perpetrators of mind control are NOT aliens from outer space. NOT members of the so-called Illuminati. NOT men who can change to reptiles and lizards and other paranormal shapes. NOT ritualistic sex lords seeking sex slaves. NOT men seeking to wipe out particular blood lines and genetic groups. NOT members of the Masonic Order although some of them may be Masons. And probably NOT seekers of a New World Order. Targets who believe those deceptions have been successfully manipulated by the perpetrators. Know that electronic and mind control assault is performed by evil-minded, cruel, degenerate beings working either with the government, with the knowledge of the government, or under the protection of the government. In some cases, the government may even be a foreign country conducting assaults by remote on American citizens and residents with the collaboration of domestic intelligence.

The power brokers behind electronic torture and mind control fear the targets' networking over the internet. Many bloggers and persons with web sites who encourage an interchange of ideas about ESMC and who are true TIs have been subjected to internet intimidation by having their blogs and web sites deleted or otherwise compromised. Some have had to change the names of their sites several times because of that interference. Keep in mind, however, that some of those same people may actually be accomplices pretending to be harassed. More possible deception.

Capabilities of Perpetrators of ESMC

The only fact that we know for certain about electronic assault and mind control is the symptoms, or how ESMC manifests itself to the victim. Targeted individuals are well aware of the capabilities of the assailants, but for those readers who may be reading about electronic stalking and mind control for the first time, here are some of them.

(1) Monitor movements. They not only know one's vehicular movements but they can also view him and follow his movements on his property and even inside his house. Once they "hook" the target with their equipment, they have ready access to the him at all times. Their torture follows the target wherever he goes, even to other states and abroad.

Cell phones may play a role in monitoring a target's movements. Many TIs trace the origin of their electronic torture and mind control to the early 2000's, when cell phone usage was becoming increasingly more popular. Cell phones have to be used in the case of gang stalking, which goes right along with ESMC. In fact, the stalkers could not coordinate their harassment against targets without the use of cell phones or some type of walkie-talkie. Cellular phones may even somehow be used with the device that renders the electronics effects on victims. It is known that cell phones carried on one's person near credit cards can cause those cards to malfunction and wear out quickly. Credit cards are one of the hundreds of items that operate through the RFID (radio frequency identification).

The handlers appear to be able to map out your house or apartment. They probably first locate your residence, using Google Earth or some other program of that type, and then learn the configuration of the structure with some kind of infrared-type device. Once they have the layout of your house or apartment, they seem to divide it into grids, probably with the help of an architectural-type computer program. Then, they slowly zoom in on various locations where you habitually sit, stand, or lie and program those locations on their device. In my case, they first located the chair in the living room where I sit, then the lavatory and commode in the bathroom where I stand. Finally, they had programmed every area of the house, and they were able to jolt me and vibrate me in any location inside my house.

(2) Hear and record one's conversations along with those with whom one talks. This can be done even in a moving vehicle or while on foot in a rural area. The harassers occasionally record and play back to the victim excerpts of some of those conversations in his brain. The handlers can also record a person's voice and then simulate that voice.

(3) See through the victim's eyes. One's eyes are controlled by his brain; thus, by controlling the victim's brain, the handlers can also see whatever the victim sees. Not only that but they can also see what he thinks. Although a victim is led to believe that the handlers can accomplish this, it may be another example of deception through psychological trickery. For example, the handlers often comment on what I am watching on TV or what I am doing in the house. They may know that because of my brain's processes, as the brain is in constant motion as I watch TV and do chores around the house. Someday we shall know.

(4) View the victim's body whether it is clothed or not and zoom in on any part or organ of the body, even in the darkness. EKG, CT scans, and MRIs can be performed by remote. The handlers probably use the GPS with directed sound to see and torture the target's body by remote. NASA has long used similar telescopic instruments for carrying out delicate space operations. Although the handlers can target specific areas both on and in the body, this may be accomplished, either partially or wholly, through communication with the targets' brains.

(5) Inject holographic pictures or images into a victim's thoughts. In my case, the handlers have shown: my son drowning; pictures of what Christians believe to be images of Jesus; and pictures of family members and friends, sometimes in suggestive poses, and countless numbers of unknown individuals in induced dreams and thoughts. When I pray for my grandchildren, a girl and a boy, the perverted handlers will sometimes show my granddaughter's school uniform dress flying upward. Sometimes the pervs show me old photos in black and white, further evidence that the handlers can communicate through my eyes. Their computer directs the targets' brains to view all people and all situations in sexual and negative contexts. Again, this is pure mind control.

6) Apply a variety of torture techniques to the body. Many of those effects may perhaps be done through the use of silent directed sound and various PC software used over the voice-to-brain communication. Others may be psychological or aided by psychological suggestions through the psychopaths' subliminal talking and whispering into the target's brain. Those effects include

-- sensation of pin pricks in the eyes, shoulders, face, feet, elbows, and other areas. The pin prick can be instantaneous or can be prolonged. In my case, the handlers have long caused an enduring pin prick on the rear of my neck. At first I thought that the sensation was an irritation on the neck caused by shirt labels; however, when it kept hurting in the absence of labels, I knew that it was only one of the perverts' bag of tricks. In addition, the sensation was not in the same location as the shirt labels. They can also cause the entire lower legs to feel like they are being struck by pins. In recent months, they have pin pricked the depths of my auditory canal in my right ear, causing me to shiver violently. They have also frequently pricked underneath the toenail on my right foot, causing the toenail to recede for a quarter of an inch between it and the skin, much like laser is used for ingrown toenails.

- restless legs. A sensation begins in the small of the back and extends into the extremities, causing the "restless legs" syndrome. I can feel that sensation coming on as the handlers apply their vibrations to my body. Sometimes when that happens, the legs will jerk involuntarily.
- electrical jolts. These affect the entire body and feel much like the shock that one gets from touching a low voltage electrical fence.
- tremors, or vibrations. These can affect the whole body or be focused on specific parts of the body. They can range from very mild to violent. (I believe that the jolts and vibrations may partially be pre-hypnotic suggestions causing the target to think that he feels jolts and vibrations whenever the handlers whisper the code word. In other words, those physical effects may instead be psychological effects resulting in physical reactions. I have asked other people to touch my legs and body when they were vibrating, and they felt nothing.) The vibrations can envelop a large area, e.g., a lawn, including the house, or they can narrow down to a very small area, e.g., a target's stomach or his nose.
- zapping in/on the head. These sound much like sparks from a welder's torch or like children's sparklers used as fireworks on holidays.
- clicking in the left ear. (In my case, it is always in the left ear, never in the right one.)
- severe cramping, mainly in the calves of the legs.
- numbness in the limbs from the base of the spinal column to the toes.
- coughing (I can feel an unnatural scratching in the inside of my throat), and sneezing (likewise, I can feel an artificial tickling in the inside of my nostrils).
- induced erections, by vibrating very lightly the inside of the urethra and the groin. Those erections usually occur while the handlers whisper the names of friends and relatives, very obviously attempting to cause the target to associate the sexual sensation with those people.
- stomach aches and pains, indigestion, nausea, and dizziness.
- sodomizing and virtual rape, using some unknown force to probe the anal cavity and the vagina (perhaps directed sound waves, which cause a strong vibration and can focus on a particular very small area).
- lethargy and listlessness. I suspect that many people suffering from Chronic Fatigue Syndrome are actually victims of ESMC.
- tinnitus. I had never suffered from tinnitus before the electronic stalking began. It hit me the day the stalking became overt, and I have had that condition ever since then. The tone of the ear ringing changes often in a very notable manner, sometimes reaching a very high pitch.
- inability to urinate or frequent urination. I had two prostate procedures in 2001, although the prostate was not enlarged, because I had the urge to urinate but could not do so. Now I know that it was the work of the perverts who use the ESMC techniques, for since the handlers became overt in 2005, they have continued making the bladder often seem full. Now I can hear them whispering, "Don't piss."

- constipation. Likewise, I often used to have a problem defecating. Since I have developed an ability to "hear" the handlers' whispers, I hear them saying, "Don't shit." The brain learns over a period of time to react to their commands. However, knowing now what causes the constipation, I am no longer affected by it.
- frequent defecation. The handlers constantly probe my anal cavity and whisper for me to "go shit." According to other victims, this is a very common symptom. Making victims defecate often is psychological as well as physical, as it humiliates victims and keeps them from leaving home. That particular effect, however, has not adversely affected me. I still control my bowel movements.
- sleep deprivation. All of this leads to sleep deprivation, which then becomes a symptom itself. This is designed to weaken the victim's body as well as his mind and cause him to have motor, household, and other accidents. In addition, it makes the victim more vulnerable to mind control. Conversely, the handlers' device can also make targets incredibly sleepy and actually cause his eyes to close involuntarily. There also appears to be a particular form of vibration that will "wire" the target to keep him awake at night.
- the sensation of crawling insects on the face and neck.
- intense itching. This can be any place on the body. They often will make it seem like a mosquito bite or a fire ant bite. The itching is normally on the hands or the feet.
- twitching of the fingers. The perverts not only want to annoy you but also convince you that you are developing Parkinson's disease.
- partial loss of sight. The handlers do something to the eyes that make them feel as if a grain of sand is underneath the eyelid. They also cause pin pricks in the eyes. I have lost much sight in my left eye as a result. I do not wear glasses to read or to drive. Until a few months ago, I could read the TV captions clearly. Now I have to be very close to the TV set to see the captions and I often have double vision and blurred vision, especially in the left eye. In addition, the lips and mouths of speakers on TV are not in sync with their words. I also recently discovered while watching Wheel of Fortune on TV that the movements of objects on TV are likewise not in sync. When the participants in that program spun the wheel, the result on my TV (or in my vision) was about two clicks of the Wheel of Fortune off what they should have been.
- throbbing in the head. This has something to do with "mining" the brain or it is part of the psychological conditioning to make the target believe that he must reveal his thoughts.
- aches and pains in various parts of the body. I am very physically active; thus, the handlers attempt to cripple my knees and my right arm and hand (I am right handed) to keep me from being able to work. They can also cause arthritic-type pain in the hands, pains in the lower back, and extreme pain in the legs by striking the sciatic nerve.
- salivation. The pervs' device can cause me to salivate at night while I sleep as well

- as during the day when I am active. For no reason, spittle will sometimes seep from the corner of my mouth.
- tingling vibration focused on the outside of the right side of the nostril (it can, of course, focus on any location). As a result of the vibrations (or perhaps lasering) on that area, a small brown bump has appeared at that location. That bump remains very sensitive and often runs and forms a scab.
 - involuntary physical movements. For example, when I type my emails and computer documents, the pervs' software, which constantly pummels my brain, causes me to reverse certain consonants and vowels, slowing down considerably my typing speed. Other targets have suffered serious falls, when the devices caused their knees to buckle. The handlers' device can also cause the arms and legs to flail and jerk involuntarily. I have awoken while sleeping when one of my arms flailed into the head board.
 - heart flutters and irregular palpitations. In particular, the pervers cause the heart to beat at a far greater than normal rate, or at least they lend the perception that it is beating rapidly through psychological or perhaps post-hypnotic suggestions. The handlers want the target to believe that his heart is overworking and that he may suffer a heart attack, stroke, or chronic heart problems.
 - pressure on the bladder, causing the victim to want to urinate very often. Because of that sensation, I underwent two painful and costly prostate procedures with a urologist before I knew the real cause of the problem. The pervs still apply pressure on the bladder; however, now that I know that it is their evil work, it does not bother me.
 - sores in various areas. The pervers continually vibrate (or laser) the outside of my right nostril, which remains continually sensitive. That area scabs over, loses its scab, and then scabs over again. A spot has also developed on my chin, where I often feel the tingling of their vibrations (or lasering).
 - high and sudden temperature rises in the body. Those may be partially psychologically induced.

The physical symptoms listed above are some of those that have occurred in my case. Other targeted individuals may have experienced other symptoms, perhaps in addition to those I have listed. Just as the groups of handlers differ, so do the symptoms that those handlers cause.

The electronic jolts and vibrations also affect domesticated animals. My handlers can beam their frequencies (or whatever) in broad waves that cover very wide areas, including my yard and the adjoining pasture. My dog, which is an outside pet, is much affected by the electronic assault methods despite her being in excellent health and getting regular checkups by the veterinarian. She often trembles violently and appears frightened. At times, she pants heavily, gulping for air, and almost collapses. She very often shakes her head as if she is trying to get something out of or off her head. I've taken her to the vet twice for that symptom, and he diagnosed her both times with an ear infection and prescribed her medicine. Despite that, after almost three years, she still shakes her head. My cat, on the other hand, does not seem to be affected by the electronic effects. Gender could not be a factor, as they are both spayed females.

Earlier Tell-Tale Symptoms

In the 1990's, I experienced several strange symptoms that I now know were the handlers' work. Although at the time I thought that they were odd, I did not connect them to any evil source.

-- The muscles in the calves of my legs pulsed unnaturally. That symptom continues to this day. There is absolutely no physical explanation for that strange occurrence. There seems to be no particular pattern to the pulsing. Moreover, weather and other conditions do not seem to affect the pulsations. Some days there is much less noticeable pulsation than other days. I believe that the strange pulsing has something to do with the electromagnetic force or frequencies of whatever device is used by the handlers to connect with my mind.

-- The tops of both ears began to exude a colorless fluid that became crusty. Likewise, there is no physical explanation for that condition, which still continues whether I use sun screen or not. Other victims have mentioned the fluid coming from the tops of their ears. Also, the top of my nose forms a crust. I remove it with a soapy bath cloth one day and the next day it reappears. Sun screen does not prevent its doing that. I do not have particularly sensitive skin.

-- I also experienced the sensation of something crawling on my skin or underneath my skin, normally on my face. Unable to sleep well at night, I sought out a dermatologist. The doctor called that condition dermatitis and told me that it had no known cure. Strangely, he said that he also had dermatitis. That condition gradually went away and did not return until the electronic effects and mind control activities became obvious in December of 2005! I now know that the "dermatitis" in the mid-1990's was the work of the handlers, probably whispering to my brain that I felt insects crawling on my face.

-- I became weak and lethargic for no apparent reason. That malady is often called chronic fatigue syndrome. Such was my lack of energy that oftentimes my son would have to help me up from my chair. Even then, I was unsteady on my feet. I was still in my fifties. Despite those odd conditions, I failed to see anything sinister in them. Over time, I regained my strength, and today I am again exceptionally fit. I later learned that the handlers' device can cause chronic fatigue.

-- I also often had "restless legs" at night when I retired. That symptom is a favorite with the handlers, and it appears to have some kind of relationship to the pin pricks and vibrations. It first begins at the small of the back and then continues down the leg, usually the right one, to the bottom of my foot.

At first, targets normally ascribe their ailments and physical problems to simply "bad luck," lack of exercise, genetics, a poor diet, or advancing age. It literally takes years for most targets to realize that their symptoms are induced by remote by people who want to harm them. Once the target does become aware that the effects are unnatural, he has absolutely no defense against the torture, and his frustration, anger, and anxiety mount. Nobody believes him. Law enforcement will not investigate his claims. When that scenario develops, the handlers have achieved what they wanted and anticipated. Many targets die without ever knowing that they have been targeted.

(7) Cause the target financial problems. Keep in mind that most targets live on fixed incomes and most of them have to live frugally. Yet, the handlers employ a bag of tricks designed to drain the target financially by

- Making the target spend thousands of dollars on remedies and gadgets that supposedly neutralize or ameliorate the effects of ESMC and causing him to hire detectives to investigate the ESMC.
- Causing the target to make mathematical errors on his taxes and other documents that result in substantial losses.
- Affecting the target's judgment that ends in his making faulty and costly decisions.
- Destroying expensive household and other items, making targets have to replace them. In my case, they have ruined two printers, two blenders, and other household items. Their device, however, can only affect machines that have small motors or batteries. My coffee makers, which have no motor, are not affected.
- Distracting the target so that he forgets to pay bills on time, leading to his paying penalties.
- Creating problems with the electrical system and mechanical devices, especially computers and printers, that make targets have to hire technicians to repair. I have had to hire PC technicians several times at from $75 to $140 a visit.
- Urging the targets through their voice-to-brain whispers to buy expensive needless items.
- Fomenting personal and other problems that require that targets hire lawyers. A TI correspondent wrote about her taking videos of neighbors overtly harassing her and then being arrested for that action. She had to hire a lawyer to get out of jail and is now awaiting trial. Of course, nothing happened to the harassers. Moreover, now that law abiding citizen has an arrest record that will follow her to the grave.
- Sending targets to hospital emergency rooms due to physical problems they cause with their devices. One TI correspondent rushed to the ER on at least three occasions when the handlers caused her throat to constrict, keeping her from breathing.
- Ruining the targets' credit. The manipulators and their accomplices will steal credit card and other statements from the targets' mail boxes or "lose" them in the postal system, causing targets to pay late fees; by whispering into the targets' brains, make them forget to pay bills; and interfere with the targets online payments to cause them bill payment problems.
- Robbing targets of their time by harassing them continually with electronic assault and mind control, thus keeping them from tending to their business affairs. Very often targets lose their jobs because of the ESMC distractions in their lives. I have spent countless hours taking notes, recording them in my journal, corresponding with other TIs, researching on the internet, and trying objects and ways to neutralize the ESMC effects, time that I could have spent on home improvement projects and other useful activities. I am a very able genealogical researcher, and I used to spend hours a day at that pastime. Now I very seldom do family research because of the many distractions that affect my concentration.

Causing targets financial ruin is one of the aims of the handlers. Many of the targets with whom I have corresponded have depleted their savings and have gone into bankruptcy because of the perverts. Others have become virtually street people. The handlers set out to break targets financially, and they often do.

(8) Knock out and interfere with the function of battery-operated or electrical household items. In my case, the handlers have changed radio stations, caused halogen flashlights to blink and go out, caused the tiny lights in a fingerprint reader used for PC security to quiver, caused interference in TV programs, burned out electrical wall outlets, caused microwaves not to function, burned out watch batteries while the watch was on my wrist, and changed the functions of certain keys on the keyboard of the computer – all by remote. They have ruined four computer printers, two Weedeaters, two blenders, and other appliances and motor-driven objects. They have also burned out the batteries in my smoke detectors, flashlights, and other objects that use batteries. Their device can even cause the ink in pens to congeal or dry up so that the pens will not write. Once, as I stood watching, they caused the loose cap of a gallon jug of milk to flap upward several times. I ridiculed them that they weren't able to flip the cap completely off. All of this suggests that the perverts use directed silent sound beamed in by a radio frequency and guided by the GPS. However, their device cannot disarm any appliance that is not battery-operated or motorized, for example, a coffee maker, which operates through only a heated coil.

(9) Manipulate the target's computer and telephones. By hacking the computer and tapping the phones, the handlers are able to interfere with the target's communication system and thus harm his relationships with family members and friends. One of the chief aims of the handlers is to totally isolate the target from society. The handlers can operate on the highest levels of telecommunications providers. For example, when my handlers want to keep me from opening a web page, they can cause a pop-up saying "Internet Explorer cannot display the webpage." My handlers also re-direct my telephone calls and interject disturbances into telephone conversations that only I can hear. The handlers will also send duplicate emails, change words in your emails, and resend emails days after you send the original to your correspondents to make you appear crazy.

I live in a rural area, where it is difficult to obtain DSL. When I found out that Hughesnet offered DSL in rural settings, I subscribed to their service, and the fee was deducted directly from my bank account. I was very pleased to be able to communicate with other TIs using high speed internet. The handlers, however, set out to remove that advantage. They began using pop-ups with the Hughesnet logo telling me that there were problems with my accounts. At the time, I believed that the pop-ups were from Hughesnet. I became so annoyed by what I considered was Hughesnet's lack of accounting efficiency that I canceled my service. Only later did I learn that it was handler deception that caused that action. Today, I am back to using the much slower dial-up internet. Just what the handlers wanted.

Interference with the target's PC and telephone is designed to isolate the target (mind control) and to find out who his contacts are. Information gained about the target by tapping his phones and hacking his computer is minimal. The handlers ALREADY know the target's most intimate thoughts, actions, and his life history.

(10) Discredit the target by making him appear insane or demented. They will also spread rumors about the target designed to isolate him from neighbors. Those rumors will usually suggest that the target is a drug pusher or user, a child molester (one of their favorites), a wife-beater, a common whore, a rip-off artist, a closet drunkard, a white collar thief, a racist, an anti-Semite, and others. In addition to socially isolating the target, the handlers also seek to cause the target anxiety and other psychological problems that drive him to a psychiatrist, who then diagnoses him as schizophrenic. The handlers know that once the target sees a psychiatrist and it becomes a matter of record, the target's sanity becomes an issue. Afterward, whatever the target says will be treated as suspect. This is important to the handlers, as they know that the target will be discredited if he seeks out law enforcement.

(11) Register the target's emotions. Their software allows them to use the target's pulse rate and probably other methods to record emotions such as anxiety, panic, fear, frustration, anger, sadness, loneliness, and others. The emotions actually appear in the form of words that surface in your thoughts, e.g., frustration, loneliness. In addition, the perverts continually whisper those words into your brain to actually cause those emotions. Handlers prepare loop play tapes of whispers whose design is to play on the target's emotions. (More about whispers later.)

Moreover, their computer software is programmed to alert the handlers when targets think of certain topics. In my case, a computerized female voice will say in a reproving manner, "Max." At that point, the handlers cease their continual general talking and whispering and instead concentrate on that topic. A voice on the computer often says "Good" when I think along the lines desired by the handlers. This re-enforces the conditioning of targets that the handlers attempt to accomplish.

(12) Cause mood swings. The handlers' mind control programs can cause moods that range from explosive anger to total complacency. This causes erratic behavior in the target that is seen by many observers as a mental disorder.

(13) Transmit voices into the brain that only the victim can hear. When I first heard the voices, I was driving. The radio was turned off, as it normally is when I drive. The voices seemed to come from near the driver's door side panel. My first thought was that a device, or a bug, had been planted in the vehicle and was somehow being used to project the voices. A sweep of the vehicle by a private detective the following day did not reveal a bug. Still, it took me a couple of more days to realize that the voices were coming through my brain, not the vehicle.

The perpetrators of mind control are very methodical and deliberate. Trainers of the handlers must have studied a very detailed training manual. At first, the handlers normally only call the victims ugly names, then they gradually begin to talk directly to the victim. In my case, there are three principal voices as well as a far-off sounding voice that sounds like a female shouting. All of that is deception. The shrill far-sounding voice is synthesized to sound shrill and distant. One person can use all three voices. In addition, several handlers rotate in shifts, using the same three voices. Moreover, males assume female voices and vice versa. The handlers can also hit certain keys on their computer to repeat often-used phrases and sentences.

Over time, the victim learns that he can actually talk back to the handlers. Finally, the two parties establish a dialogue albeit in an acrimonious fashion. Once I found out that I could also “speak” to the sickos telepathically, I used that ability to ridicule, taunt, and demean them. Then, I later learned that that is exactly what they wanted me to do, as it established a stronger link between those speakers and me and got me accustomed to dialoguing with them.

Every target who is electronically harassed by remote is also subjected to mind control, often without his knowledge. Whether the target realizes it or not, his brain is being continually hammered twenty-four hours a day by at least two levels of voices. Naturally only the target “hears” those voices. Oftentimes the target does not hear the voices. Nevertheless, they are there. The voices may be projected “aloud” (telepathically) or in whispers. One layer of voices are the actual handlers hammering away at the “crazy” theme, telling him lies about family and friends, and attempting to keep him from engaging in any meaningful activities. Another one is an underlying loop play tape of recorded voices inaudible to the victim’s conscious mind telling him that he is crazy, making deviant sexual suggestions, and deprecating the victim in many other ways. MIND CONTROL CANNOT BE ACCOMPLISHED WITHOUT THOSE VOICES.

The handlers normally disguise their voices. Simulations can easily be made by computer programs readily available in any computer store. Moreover, various handlers will alternate using the same voices; thus, causing the target to think that the same three or four voices that he hears are monitoring him twenty-four hours a day. In fact, oftentimes there is only one handler using three or four different simulated voices. Moreover, they can mimic regional accents in a very authentically-sounding manner.

Moreover, the handlers can program certain actions to take place at certain times. For example, they can program their device to send jolts to targets whenever those targets are immobile for longer than, say, ten minutes. They can also program the hours at which targets will receive the vibrations and the circumstances under which they receive them. They can perhaps even pre-determine the strength of those vibrations, based upon the targets' thoughts.

Even much of the subliminal talking of the handlers is automated. Many of the subliminal voices that targets hear are pre-recorded and played back either continually or at programmed times. The automation allows the handlers freedom of movement and limits the manpower required for monitoring targets. With automation, one single handler can efficiently monitor a target for many hours at a time. It is also highly probable that the handlers have a handheld device that allows them to perform their tricks while on the go.

Nobody quite understands how telepathic (non-auditory) communication occurs; yet, that it exists is absolutely undeniable. As early as 1952, a scientist briefed the Pentagon on the "possible uses of ESP [extra-sensory perception] in psychological warfare." Since then, research on that topic via the intelligence community has become part of the government's experiments on mind control. In the 1970's, Stanford Research Institute engaged in intensive research on it, calling the telepathic messaging "remote viewing." Experiments included giving selected persons only geographic coordinates and asking them what they saw there. The results were astonishing. The Russians have long been interested in telepathic communication and have attempted to train their astronauts to communicate non-verbally.

The handlers constantly repeat certain phrases to the target and make suggestions to him, oftentimes of a sexual nature. As they make those suggestions, they mention names of family members and friends of the target. After hearing those suggestions day after day, finally, the target expects to hear those phrases and expects to hear the innuendos. The next step is for him to start relating to those suggestions and believing them. Such is the perverse psychology employed by the depraved individuals who handle the targets. I believe that many of the aberrant acts that we see in the media stem from subliminal suggestions that perpetrators of ESMC make to targets.

There is growing proof that the equipment of the perpetrators of the ESMC also has the ability to communicate with third persons, or persons who ordinarily might interact with the target. Those persons are instructed subliminally to say certain things and use certain words that cause the target to believe that they are accomplices out to do the target harm. The third parties are not aware of their brain manipulation. Likewise, most targets are not aware of that capability, and thus do indeed believe that those people are working against him. Unlike willing and paid accomplices, those third parties unknowingly do the handlers' evil work.

About a year ago, the handlers started repeating my thoughts back to me. There are several possible explanations for the handlers' doing that: (1) They are recording those thoughts on tape, which they probably forward to another location. (2) They are repeating the thoughts to others either present or also monitoring me who cannot hear those thoughts. The thoughts are probably picked up over earphones attached to the computer. Perhaps only one person can listen at a time; thus, they repeat the thoughts to others. (3) They simply seek to annoy me and continually remind me of their capability of hearing my thoughts. (4) The thoughts may be echoes of my own psychological “voice” and projected back to my skull as a different voice.

In “talking” to the victim’s brain, the handlers use code words and expressions. Many of them are embedded in their statements and not readily recognized as code; others are very obviously code. Regardless of how the codes are stated, they signal to the target’s brain certain reactions that the handlers expect of him. If a victim notices the context, or situation, in which the handlers use the codes and his bodily or mental reactions to their codes, it is not difficult to figure out the meaning of most of those codes. For example: “I scream,” or “ice cream,” both pronounced the same, instills anxiety; “Come in,” spoken as if they were inviting someone into their home, opens up the victim’s mind to questioning; The expression “beats the shit out of me” makes the victim feel an urge to defecate; and “I see you” and “I hear you” prepare the victim psychologically for brain “mining” by the handlers. “Go git ‘im” causes an involuntary erection. All handlers probably have their own lexicon.

The code words and expressions used by the handlers strongly hint that the handlers employ hypnotic pre-suggestions to trigger thoughts and actions in targets. Several times I have awoken suddenly during the night, when the handlers have not yet realized that I was awake, to hear very weird music and the drone of a kind of singing, or chanting, using particular words. On one occasion, a male was chanting, and I heard the word “vibrate” or “vibration” and my code name “Estados Unidos.” Then he started a kind of chant in which he repeated, “We love you.” The “love” thing is most definitely deception. The chanting may have also been deception.

Much of the handlers’ talk and the holographic images that they project into the victim’s thoughts relate to sexual themes. They particularly emphasize deviant sexual behavior. Almost all of their induced thoughts and dreams involve sex. The perverts particularly seem to enjoy sodomizing the victims with whatever means they use (perhaps directed sound aided by psychological suggestion). Other victims with whom I correspond have mentioned the same sensation; others are probably too embarrassed to mention it. The emphasis on sex appears to be more or less standard operating procedure in ESMC cases. Most targeted individuals report handlers’ voyeurism and infatuation with genitalia.

The evil nature of the handlers comes across clearly. For example, they laugh and taunt as I pray for friends and family with serious physical problems. One of those persons is an eighty-six year old man who has suffered with cancer and heart problems for years and who is legally blind. Another one is a baby about six months old who because of birth defects wears a pacemaker and a feeding tube. The perverts are well aware of those peoples’ conditions; yet, they poke fun at them as I pray. The handlers also demonstrated their evil in taunting as an elderly aunt, the last of twelve uncles and aunts, lay dying

As the target forms thoughts in his mind, the handlers' computer apparently provides the handlers dates, biographical facts, and other information to add to and correct the target's thoughts. The purpose of this is to intimidate the target into believing that the handlers are all-knowing. The handlers, in fact, often blank out data in the target's mind so that they can supply the information to him. Moreover, the handlers include all professions and occupations. For example, if the target is a carpenter, one of the handlers on every shift will be very knowledgeable of carpentry.

Very curiously, the handlers use many odd means to project their voices. When I shower, the handlers cause voices to come over the falling water. The second I turn off the water, the voices stop. Once again, that hints at directed sound. They can even cause my stomach to "growl" and inject words and phrases into the resulting growling sound. Sometimes when I push or pull an object and friction occurs, I can hear the handlers' voices. I gradually learned that the voices are recorded on loop play tapes and played continually to my subconscious, constantly re-enforcing the handlers' objectives.

The handlers may also know several languages, including Spanish. In addition, their computer software can interpret all major languages. That type software has been available for years and is in fact used to make actors in movies appear to be speaking different languages from the original ones used in making the films. Latinos, Afro-Americans, and East Indians have physically cooperated with the handlers in harassing me at various times; however, they were probably simply accomplices and not a part of the ESMC teams.

As in the case of the electronic torture, the voices will follow the target wherever he goes. For that reason, it appears that satellites are probably somehow used to project the voices. In a 2003 article named "Shocking Menace of Satellite Surveillance," author John Fleming writes that satellites are employed for "manipulating a person's mind with an audio subliminal 'message' (a sound too low for the ear to consciously detect but which affects the unconscious). In trying thereby to get a person to do what you want him to do, it does not matter if the target is asleep or awake." If satellites are not used, then some other wide-ranging object such as radio towers and cell phones may very likely provide the constant contact required for conveying the electronic and mind control assault.

The voices are crucial to mind control. In using the voices, the handlers seek several objectives: (1) Make the target doubt his sanity. (2) Cause the target not to be able to distinguish his own thoughts from the thoughts sent to him by the subliminal voices. The thoughts inserted and injected into the target's mind through the subliminal voices mingle with the target's own thoughts. The brain cannot readily separate the natural thoughts from the inserted thoughts. This, of course, influences the target's actions immensely. Those actions are normally negative and adversely affect his well being. (3) Distract the target. By constantly filling his mind with ugly, directed, and oftentimes meaningless garbage, the handlers confuse the target's mind. That makes him very vulnerable to mind control actions. The handlers do not have to be skillful psychologists to do this. Most of the content injected is crude and extraneous. (4) Cause the target to hear words and phrases intentionally programmed for him to hear while watching TV and listening to normal conversation. Usually those words and phrases that he is programmed to hear will be either very negative thoughts or nasty sexual suggestions. He is led to believe that they are his own thoughts; thus, this is similar to Number 2 above. (5)

Subconscious Whispers

Very importantly, in addition to the “audible” telepathic talking (audible only to the target), mind control targets should be aware that their handlers also continually whisper into their brains in tones so low in volume that the target’s consciousness does not pick them up. The victim is completely unaware of the whispers, which makes them all the more dangerous. It took me years to “hear” those subconscious whispers. Many targets never hear them. Nevertheless, they are there. The subconscious whispers are one of the handlers’ most formidable weapons in mind control.

Through their sub-conscious whispers, the handlers control what you think of and how you react to people, including your spouse, parents, siblings, and children. They control how you perform on your job site, how you view your job, and how you interact with your colleagues. They also control your daily life: what TV programs you watch and your opinions about them; what newspapers you read and how you interpret that news; where and how you grocery shop; even when you go to the bathroom and what and how much you eat. Only those targets who hear the whispers can know the extent to which the handlers’ consummate evil influences targets’ thoughts and actions.

The whispers are part of the handlers’ voice-to-brain messages that operate on three levels:

- (1) “Audible” messages that the target (and only the target) hears as talking “aloud” and projected telepathically into his brain. This occurred to me in December, 2005, as I was driving in Texas near the Mexican border. Naturally, only the target hears those voices.
- (2) “Audible” whispers, which some targets may “hear” as they are being directed into his subconscious. I developed the ability to hear those whispers only about a year ago. I am not certain whether the handlers wanted me to hear the whispers or I simply learned to hear them despite their secrecy.
- (3) “Inaudible” whispers and talking conducted by the handlers as an undercurrent of the former two messages. The target cannot “hear” the third level whispers and talking, which run concurrent with the audible ones and ply the target with subliminal messages 24/7 on loop play tapes. Because they cannot be heard, the third level messages constitute a very grave threat to targets.

I discovered the third level of messages strictly by accident or perhaps through the intervention of The Great Spirit. One night, I noticed that whenever my beard stubble brushes against the pillow, causing friction, I could hear voices in addition to those voices and whispers that I could already “hear.” However, the new voices seemed to come from INSIDE the ears. In addition to hearing the voices when I turned in bed, I also heard third level messages occasionally when I slid an object over another object, creating friction. The friction apparently causes the third level voices to become “audible,” much like an old phonograph needle on a record.

After listening time after time to the third level voices, I learned to distinguish what the loop taping tape was saying. As might be expected, it contained a sexual theme, repeating continually, “You’re horny.” The short sentence was pronounced in a Deep South-sounding accent, while is probably only a deception. Only recently (April, 2009), I discovered another layer of “inaudible” loop play tape, repeating the message “Trust me.” Thus, I now know that the handlers play at least two loop play tapes to my subconscious simultaneously. There may be still a third and a fourth loop play tape, playing different messages. Time will probably tell.

Targets can test themselves to find out whether they are being influenced without their knowledge by third level whispers. Place the palm of your dominant hand (that will usually be the right hand) over your ear with the large part of your palm well below your ear. Then, while pressing on your ear, swipe your palm upward a few inches. Do this repeatedly. At first, you will pick up only an unintelligible “ssssh” sound. However, by repeating the process many times and listening very closely, you will begin to hear the words. The words will consist of a phrase or short sentence, which is repeated over an unending loop play tape. You can hear the words in either ear, as they are going to your brain, not your ears. Probably not all targets receive the third-level whispers.

People are not accustomed to hearing but one voice at a time. Indeed, when two people are talking to us at the same time, we’ll eventually turn to only one of them to listen to that person’s voice. The third level of voices doubtlessly seeks to influence the target’s thoughts and actions, much like the first two levels. However, in addition, its purpose is to confuse the target’s brain with the simultaneous messages.

The various levels of subconscious whisperings take many forms, for example,

-- Giving victims negative commands. Their commands are often very subtle, for example: “If I were you, I’d . . . ; I think that you should . . . ; and Why don’t you” In addition to the commands, the handlers, by employing the inaudible whispers, cause victims to misplace items, blank out names, dates and events, make errors while calculating and writing, say things out of context while talking with others, and act in strange ways that are completely alien to their usual demeanor and behavior. The perpetrators also attempt to ruin the health and looks of targets by encouraging binge eating. They whisper to victims that they are voraciously hungry or that they should eat more sweets than usual. Their aim is to get the target hopelessly out of shape and debilitated. Their whispered commands are often sinister, causing targets to harm themselves. Some targets have actually committed suicide as a result of suggestions by the handlers and holographic images to that effect.

The power of suggestion to the brain's subconscious is truly amazing. The handlers condition targets for mind control by inducing "dreams" in which the victims plays out whatever role the handlers assign him. On one occasion while I slept, the pervs caused me to believe that I was an elderly Confederate veteran of the Civil War reminiscing about his experiences in the battle of Gettysburg. I was telling about my horse being shot and going down, about my being wounded, and about seeing comrades blown to bits with cannon balls. I woke from the "dream" with real tears in my eyes.

-- Making statements about the victims' family members and friends intended to cause estrangement of relations between them and the victims and thus isolate the victim. In my case, the handlers continually mention my son, to whom I am very close, and my two sisters, always while causing an involuntary erection. Such is the evil nature of the ESMC assailants. I telepathically tell the handlers that they cannot damage my relationship with my son, that my love for him and his family is undying, eternal, and unconditional. Despite that, they continue to attempt to cause me to think of him in a different manner.

-- Causing victims to think in negative terms about almost everybody and everything. Their device(s) cause absurd thoughts in victims. For example, I have an elderly first cousin whom I like but to whom I am not particularly close. We rarely visit. Yet, one day while thinking about calling her, the thought of being an heir of hers surged into my mind. My cousin has three children, several grandchildren, and even great-grandchildren. That negativity colors many of my normal thoughts. Their software also causes me to hear negative and suggestive words in place of ordinary words when I watch TV or listen to the radio.

-- Blanking out certain thoughts. The handlers' whispering can not only cause targets to think about the topics that they project into targets' minds but also cause targets to fail to think about important matters. The handlers delight in making targets forget appointments with people, leave items behind that they intended to take with them, and forget where they place common household items. They will also cause the target to forget names of people so that they can provide him those names, an attempt to create a dependence on the handlers' information.

-- Introducing deviant sexual ideas and feelings that victims would dismiss and reject if they were conscious of them. The handlers continually emphasize incest, necrophilia, and other sordid sexual acts in their talking. I cared for my bedridden mother for eight months before she died; on one occasion, the sickos showed me a holographic picture of my climbing into bed with her just after she died.

-- Creating in victims a lack of confidence in themselves by disparaging their capabilities and accentuating their faults. Whenever I work at home improvement projects or assemble items, the perverts ridicule, taunt, and curse during the efforts, telling me that I'm doing it wrong. Indeed, they do their best through their voices to my brain to cause me to do it wrong.

-- Sending victims on wild goose chases and believing things that are not true. This has happened to me on various occasions, once, for example, when handlers sent telepathic thoughts about the owner of a defunct radio station in another city that I suspected may have been a clandestine site of the local operations center, and I actually went and located his house. On another occasion they convinced me that surveillance bugs were hidden throughout my house, and I took screws out of receptacles and other items.

In still another instance, they made me believe that my nephew's business computer had been hacked to obtain his business transactions and accounts and that one of his employees was responsible. They also caused me to believe that a particular Penecostal church was responsible for the electronic and mind control activities employed against me. The handlers even provided a fake name of the minister of that church. Today, in traveling I must be very careful, for the handlers will cause me to make errors in driving, for example, turning at the wrong exit or missing an exit ramp.

-- Repeatedly telling the target that he is crazy. One of the aims of the sociopaths is to cause the target to think that he is losing his mind. I continually tell the handlers who monitor me that THEY are the nut cases, not I.

-- Inducing anxiety. The handlers especially attempt to induce anxiety when the target is emotionally vulnerable. In the summer of 1999, not long after my mother died, I was sitting in the patio when I suddenly panicked. I had never experienced anxiety.

The anxiety endured for several months. During that time, I saw a psychiatrist twice and took two prescriptions of Prozac. The handlers undoubtedly expected me to commit suicide. However, a greater force took over, and I gradually rose above that problem. The psychiatrist dismissed me after two visits, telling me that I did not need him. In a few months, I got off the drugs completely and have not taken them since then. Now that I know that the anxiety was caused by the handlers' whispering, I will never take medicine again and I will never again succumb to their induced panic attacks. Nevertheless, they still continually attempt to cause anxiety. In my case, the code word that they use to induce anxiety is "I scream," which when pronounced together sounds like "ice cream."

-- Extracting information. By asking questions with their whispers, the handlers can learn information not only about the target but also about his relatives and friends. For example, whenever the target thinks of a person, he will also think their first name. Let us say that the person who comes to the target's mind is named Joe. All the perverts have to do is whisper, "Joe who?" The target then tells the handlers Joe's surname. I have attempted to resist telling the handlers surnames; yet, there is something in the human brain that makes him think of the last name whenever someone asks "Who?" The handlers, of course, know that and use it to their advantage in obtaining information about many people whom the target knows.

Although the handlers know your social security, credit card, and driver license numbers, your email passwords, and your checking and savings account numbers, they will not use that information for criminal purposes. They have strict orders from their bosses not to do anything that can be traced. Thus, the handlers are not swindlers and con-guys.

-- Getting the target to trust them. That was borne out in the third level whispering that I discovered, saying continually through the loop play tape, "Trust me." My handlers also continually tell me in the "audible" subliminal talking to trust them. I laugh at them and ridicule them for thinking that I might possibly ever trust them. Trust psychopathic criminals?

Other Manifestations of the Handlers' Voice-to-Skull (V2K) Messages

The ESMC assailants are also able to project voices and other sounds through objects near the victim, i.e., the TV, a PC, and other electrical devices and even into the open air near him. Their sounds can take the form of knocking on the walls, wind and rain, dogs barking, falling stacks of lumber, and birds cooing or singing. Some of those sounds might be heard by others if they were present; however, the stalkers are careful not to make the noises if there are visitors. I live alone, as many victims do, and my dog often barks at some of the noises that the stalkers project into the yard and pasture. One can buy computer programs that make those same sounds.

The stalkers can send their voices through a radio, even when the radio is turned off. They can also make you think that people at nearby tables in restaurants and other public places are talking about you by projecting voices into your ears/brain that seem to come from their direction. (Directed sound again?) In applying their evil, the electronic stalkers make use of equipment that changes their voices to hide their identity. Voice changing programs are readily available on the internet for purchase. They can also duplicate the voices of people with whom you often talk .

I reject completely the belief by some targets that the handlers practice behavior modification. Behavior modification implies turning bad into good. If there is an element of behavior modification in their actions, it is to form aberrant behavior, not exemplary behavior. No, their purpose has nothing to do with behavior modification. In my opinion, the handlers are only perverted hireling manipulators working for the powerbrokers.

However, knowing is conquering. After I had been made to look ridiculous several times by my handlers, I learned to discipline my mind from falling for the handlers' whispered schemes. I am now very careful about what I do and how I go about it. The handlers also used to delight in making me forget to take items with me when I left the house and forget where I had placed other items. I used to sometimes lock my keys in the vehicle. Now I make a concentrated effort to ensure that when I leave the house I have everything I intended to take with me. I also now rarely misplace items in the house because I am much more alert.

In addition, my memory has actually improved, as I now concentrate on names and facts. The handlers' whispers can still make me forget someone's name or a place momentarily, but a while later, I remember them. Of course, sometimes the handlers do this intentionally so that they can "help" me remember. I have learned to be very careful, knowing that they will make me forget something so that they can supply the answer, trying to make me dependent on them. More elementary psychology. The handlers' computer software has programmed me to reverse many of the letters in words that I type, for example placing a particular vowel before a particular consonant or in the wrong place. I have to be very careful now in typing and then go back and review what I have written before sending anything by email.

(14) READ A VICTIM'S THOUGHTS. There is irrefutable proof that many university, medical, and defense contractor scientists have developed microchips and other devices that operate with computer programs to achieve that capability. Many of those methods have been patented. Scientists know that certain radio frequencies can pick up the natural frequencies of the human brain.

My handlers at first made me believe that their equipment picked up only a few one- and two-syllable words of my thoughts. I even heard them talking excitedly about picking up those fragmentary thoughts. That was total deception. They have long had the ability not only to pick up complete thoughts. In fact, their device intercepts a target's thoughts BEFORE those thoughts fully develop in the target's conscious. The handlers always hear the target's thoughts a few words before the target becomes aware of them.

Sometimes the handlers play my thoughts back to me in my own voice, with my own accent, and with my own pronunciations. I have often wondered why. Perhaps it is just another psychological tool thrown into the equation to annoy the targets, for it does bother targets that they self-consciously "hear" their own thoughts, or perhaps it makes recording the targets' thoughts easier to do.

People think without realizing that they are thinking. They cannot help thinking. That is quite natural. It is a psychological phenomenon that once targets are aware that the handlers can read their thoughts, the targets subconsciously articulate those thoughts carefully, knowing that somebody else is "listening." Instead of simply thinking naturally, targets become very conscious of their thoughts and will make sure that those thoughts are very clear. They will even "explain" those thoughts.

The handlers' device causes that consciousness of thought to aid the handlers in hearing and seeing the thoughts more clearly. Moreover, when a target's thoughts occur, the handlers' computer program will use the target's own thoughts to steer him in a particular direction to a specific topic. The handlers reinforce the computer's capability by whispering instructions to the target. The handlers want targets eventually to be unable to distinguish their own thoughts from the handlers' induced thoughts. Their point is to control that person's actions. I often tell my handlers telepathically, "if your commands just happen to coincide with my natural actions, it is mere coincidence." That may be true now, but it was not always so.

I have already mentioned that mind control cannot be achieved without the subliminal voices. Likewise, it cannot be accomplished without the computer programs that the handlers use. Those programs not only make sound effects, simulate voices, and perform other readily discernible sounds but they also program many of the mind control functions. For example, the computer can program a target's thoughts to view people in a negative context. A target's thoughts about a specific person can be programmed in a specific way, and they can also be programmed differently for particular persons. Programmed thoughts about others are often sexual; they can also make the target believe that a person is stealing from him, that another person is poisoning him, that a person is talking about him behind his back, etc. They can also program the target to act and react in certain ways. The programmed thoughts and actions aid the handlers in totally isolating the target from society and convincing him and others that he is crazy.

The handlers not only hear one's thoughts, probably wearing a headset attached to a computer, but they can perhaps also see the thoughts in writing on their monitor. When my handlers repeat my thoughts so that I can hear them telepathically, they also repeat some words, like "the," as if a third grader is reading from a book. Of course, that may simply be deception. If the thoughts are indeed being recorded in writing, a narrative of those thoughts probably appears somewhat like the computerized captions for the hearing impaired on TV.

The handlers' equipment and software can also see and record the very images that your thoughts see. In other words, they can also see what you see in your thoughts on their monitor! Science fiction? Hardly. Knowing that they can see my thoughts, I have learned to project images, scenes, and actions to the handlers. Sometimes when I hear good jitterbug music, I show myself dancing. They comment on the dancing.

The mind reading capability not only gives stalkers access to everything in the victim's mind but also provides them massive amounts of information about friends and family members of victims. The stalkers feverishly exploit this information 24/7. In my case, the stalkers constantly whisper the names of my son, two sisters, friends and acquaintances, and even people whom I do not really know but who might creep into my thoughts to gather information about those individuals. Knowing my thoughts also gives the stalkers my computer passwords (and thus control over my communications), information about my business matters, and previous knowledge of my actions and movements.

The perverts' equipment and software also have the capability of inducing "dreams" and thoughts while the victim sleeps. In those dreams and thoughts, the handlers introduce certain people, some of whom the victim knows, though not always very well, and others who are unknown to the victim. In the dreams, they set up particular scenarios in which the victim is the principal actor, doubtlessly to study his interaction with the other actors. In addition to the induced dreams and thoughts, the handlers also start sentences and then stop, letting the victim finish those sentences. And they flash photos before the victim's eyes while he is in a dream-like state of consciousness and ask him questions about those people. I have awoken suddenly to see pictures being passed in rapid succession before my eyes. Their monitors register the victim's pulse rate, emotions (including his sexual inclinations toward other people and his level of anxiety), whether the victim is telling the truth about questions he is being asked, his dislike of or fondness for certain people, places, or objects, and many other physical and psychological reactions. The handlers' objective is to learn targets' psychological foibles and physical weaknesses and then exploit them.

Of those capabilities, Number 13, voices, and Number 14, mind reading, loom above the others in conquering the victim's mind and spirit. In fact, hearing voices and having minds read sound so incredible that most victims do not report their electronic stalking and mind control assault to law enforcement. After all, if one hears voices and believes that people can read his thoughts, he must be crazy. And that is exactly what psychiatrists tell victims, that they suffer from dementia or delusional paranoia-schizophrenia.

Several targets with whom I have corresponded claim that their handlers can inject mind-altering and body-function drugs into their bodies. While that may be possible, it presupposes that those drugs have already been deposited somewhere in their bodies and poised for release at some point. That probably can actually be done. However, I suspect that the targets' handlers deceive them into believing that those drugs are being administered by playing with their minds. Again, pre- and post-hypnotic suggestions may figure in that belief.

The Essence of Mind Control

Mind control follows a well established plan, based far more on psychology than on electronic assault. There are three sequences to that plan.

(1) Surveillance. In this sequence, the handlers not only watch and listen to the target's conversations with others and monitor his movements but they also, through their method of "hooking" the target's brain, silently "mine" the target's thoughts and memories. The object is to reconstruct the target's entire life, identify all relatives, friends, and acquaintances of the target, and learn any smut and dishonesty connected to the target to later make him feel guilt. In addition to "mining" the targets' thoughts and watching their activities, the perpetrators interview people who know the targets, their family members, and their friends. Those people often unwittingly divulge information about the targets through “friendly” conversations with the perpetrators’ agents. Sometimes, the agents pose as law enforcement officers and private detectives to intimidate people into telling all they know about targets. Actual law enforcement officers also doubtlessly cooperate in some cases. Only with this knowledge can mind control be used effectively.

(2) Silent voices through their voice-to-skull method. The target will not be aware of this; yet, handlers are conditioning him or setting him up psychologically for the last and final step of mind control. During this time, the handlers may begin their electronic torture.

(3) “Audible” voices (V2K) heard only by the target and augmented by consistent, continual, and strong electronic assault. With the knowledge gained in the first sequence and the pre-conditioning accomplished in the second sequence, the handlers now begin to bombard the target with voices that only he can hear, manipulate his thoughts and actions, and generally torment him. They hope and expect that the outcome will be the total disability of the target to function in society.

Mind control is achieved through a combination of psychological trickery and electronic effects. The electronic effects are largely utilized to re-enforce the psychological aspects of mind control. Although the electronic effects are painful and sometimes even debilitating, they are usually bearable. As long as people have control of their minds, they can normally handle pain. On the other hand, mind control seeks to dominate both the mind and the body of targets, to gain absolute control over those persons and manipulate their every thought and action. Make no mistake about it; handlers are highly trained in both psychology and computer/electronics. They may not be very savvy about the field of psychology; yet, they’ve been taught how to apply it. They are probably far more adept at applying and understanding the electronics than the psychology. However, whoever wrote the ultra-secret training manual, probably a team of psychiatrists and intelligence interrogators, were masters in psychological application.

Let me re-emphasize that mind control cannot exist without the handlers’ capability of voice-to-skull (V2K), i.e., subliminally talking and whispering to targets. Again, the brain of every true TI hears that subliminal talking whether the actual target realizes it or not.

Mind control seeks to disenfranchise the target of his ability to function through a series of clever psychological tactics. We have already mentioned several of those. Here are some others.

(1) Knowledge of surveillance. After a long period of observation and “mining” of the targets’ thoughts, the handlers let targets know that they are objects of electronic surveillance. They reveal that they know intimate details of the targets. The total loss of privacy of thought unnerves the targets and makes them still more vulnerable to other psychological and electronic attacks.

(2) Loss of control of thought. Not only do handlers know the targets' thoughts but they also plant thoughts in those targets. Targets find themselves thinking of subjects and performing acts that they ordinarily would not think or do. Those thoughts occur at strange times. Certain thoughts and reactions occur time after time. Many of them are sexual in nature. Targets may at first believe that those thoughts and actions are their own and they may be somewhat puzzled by them; however, they eventually learn that those thoughts and actions stem from subconscious suggestions made to the targets' mind through V2K.

(3) Humiliation. Humiliation of targets cause a feeling of helplessness in targets. It often occurs in the realm of sex. Male targets experience involuntary erections and female targets, artificially-induced orgasms. Again, this is accomplished through a combination of psychology and electronic manipulation. Here is an example: I began experiencing a partial erection throughout the day and night, and I knew that that was not natural. Then, one day while washing my hair I brushed the small hairs at the entrance of the ear canal, and each time I did I heard, "You're horny." The subliminal voices were toned so low in volume that my conscious could not pick them up. The continual repetitions of their loop play tape had convinced my brain of that suggestion. On another day, I also felt a very subtle vibration in my groin area, which, aided by the suggestion that I was horny, caused the erections. In addition, handlers tell targets through their V2K that targets have to defecate. This causes them to lose control of their bowels, another example of humiliation.

(4) Making the target appear crazy. Through subliminal whispering, handlers make targets very forgetful. They forget names of people whom they know well. They forget where they place objects. They forget to do things on their list of things-to-do. By projecting voices, handlers convince targets that others are talking about them. All of that makes targets think that they are losing their minds or developing Alzheimer's. Those same actions suggest to observers the same message. All true TIs are acutely aware of that mind control objective.

(5) Assigning guilt. The handlers' computer can cause targets to hear certain words entered into the handlers' computer whenever they watch TV or converse with others. The words triggered usually deal with sex, violence, and other negative topics. Targets start believing that they are actually thinking those words. That causes them guilt, which aids the handlers in instilling and re-enforcing that very guilt.

At first, I believed that the government, or some such powerful organization, might be experimenting on humans using electronic effects and mind control. Indeed, that did happen, probably in the 1960's through the 1980's. However, by the 1990's mind control was already well developed and had been fashioned into an art and a science. Today no experiments are necessary. Mind reading and subliminal talking leading to mind control are already perfected, in full usage, and being carried out on a massive scale both in the United States and abroad.

Searching for Remedies

After one discovers that he has become “hooked,” he naturally grasps at ways to prevent the electronic and psychological abuse and neutralize the source. That effort becomes costly. Most targets are simply plain, middle class people, and dealing with electronic assault and mind control places a great strain on their financial resources. The handlers know this and encourage targets to spend their money on useless gadgets and remedies.

The actions that I took to find a way to detect and neutralize whatever causes the electronic effects and voices (mind control) are too numerous to describe in detail. I will only summarize some of those actions.

-- Services. (1) Paid $300 to a private detective to look for a bug in my vehicle and (2) $750 to another P.I. to provide information about a person I had reason to suspect. (3) Had dental work performed to re-do that which had been done abroad. (4) Had x-rays and a CT Scan made. This totaled well over $5,000.

-- Gadgets. (1) Installed an NCH Tone Generator program in my computer. (2) Bought and wore a small stone medallion that was said to afford some kind of protection. (3) Purchased a Walkman-type device called the Jammer, which was useless. (4) Bought a Spy Audio Jammer that produced static supposed to keep outsiders from listening to telephone conversations. (5) Purchased a dozen small objects composed of metal shavings and crystals held together with heavy glue called Orgone Blasters. (6) Ordered and used a small device called the BIOPRO “Home Harmonizer,” whose manufacturer should be jailed for fraud. (7) Bought and used two devices, the RF Bug Detector and the Zap Checker, Model ZC185, to detect and measure electromagnetism. (8) Bought an expensive radio scanner that I thought might interfere with the handlers’ frequencies. (9) Bought and used neodymium magnets. (10) Many other objects, programs, and devices. I spent several thousand dollars on those items and materials.

-- Experiments. (1) Walked the outside perimeter of my house with small radio. If it lost its station and started buzzing, it was supposed to mean that my attack was land based. The stations remained clear. (2) Used ear plugs. (3) Exchanged a mattress with springs for one without them. (4) Encased head with aluminum foil at night and wore a ball cap lined with foil. (5) Turned several radios on at the same time tuned to different frequencies. (6) Coated a cotton cloth with peanut butter, wrapped it in plastic, and wore it over my head at night. (7) Took massive amounts of recommended vitamins and minerals. (8) Took for about nine months a chelating substance called Detoxamin, which cost over $1,000. (9) Made a Faraday Cage of chicken wire with a copper outside grounding rod. (10) Made and used a blanket made of heavy aluminum foil to sleep underneath. (11) Placed aluminum foil over the bedroom windows. (12) Used two 3 volt watch batteries, the positive side taped to one ear and the negative side, to the other ear, at night. (13) Deliberately exposed myself to lightning during electrical storms. (14) Tried recommended isometric exercises. (15) Turned off the main breaker at night, cutting off all electricity within the house.

Those efforts and expenditures yielded little or no result. I have not yet found any satisfactory way of locating, neutralizing, or lessening whatever causes the electronic effects and mind control. My advice to other targets is “save your money” and instead contribute to a scientific study to find the source of the electronic effects and mind control. You can also prepare fliers for a minimal cost to circulate information on electronic assault and mind control.

In addition to falling victim to electronic assault and mind control, targets also become victims of scams. Some innovators conscientiously seek to find and invent objects and methods to dispel the electronic effects and eliminate mind control. Others are scam artists who capitalize on the desperation of victims and knowingly sell them useless and expensive items. Be sure that a breakthrough will occur. As I often telepathically tell my handlers, “The secret will come out. Nothing lasts forever.”

After reading about targets rushing to the emergency room because of the handlers’ electronic torture, I determined early in my harassment situation that I would not follow that path. Instead, I deal with the electronic assault and mind control and defy the psychos. My guiding theme is “Whatever happens happens.”

The Handlers’ Bosses

In the foregoing narrative, I have talked about various techniques and actions of the handlers who perform the ESMC. That they are evil, degenerate voyeurs and psychopaths should be as clear to the reader as it is to every victim. However, the handlers themselves are only trained hirelings. Who empowers them? In other words, who gives handlers the permission or the orders to apply the ESMC. Who identifies the targets that they harass? Who provides them the devices and the know-how to carry out the ESMC? Let us look into possibilities of the “bosses” for whom the lowly handlers work.

Michael Rothschild’s article in the February issue of The Progressive called “FBI Deputizes Business” identifies businesses as possible perpetrators of electronic torture and mind control. The article reveals that the FBI, now overseen by the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), formed a group of businesses called the Infraguard in 1996 under the Clinton administration (1992-2000) ostensibly to stem and pre-empt any perceived terrorist threat within the United States. The meaning of “terrorist threat” is at best very vague and gives those essentially FBI-sponsored vigilante groups the legal right to attack any American citizen whom they wish with absolute immunity. Law enforcement not only permits those groups to operate but probably also assists them.

The Bush administration (2000-2008) built upon that little-known group in his post-9/11 attack on democracy as a key element in quelling any opposition or suspected opposition to his regime within the United States. FBI Director Robert Mueller called that megalithic vigilante group the “first line of defense.” It does not require a molecular physicist to imagine the abuses that are certain to accompany any such para-law enforcement program.

Many of those Infraguard “businesses” are Fortune 500 firms, including companies that hold defense contracts with the U. S. Government. It is a well known fact that businesses buy Congressional cooperation through Political Action Committees (PACs), which include religious, social, and civic organizations, some of which exist to promote the aims of foreign governments within the United States. Thus, broadly interpreted, Infraguard can include those latter organizations, such as the Jewish Defense League, the Anti-Defamation League, and radical pro-Israel and other Christian Fundamentalist groups, in its domestic terrorism program.

The tentacles of those organizations reach into the smallest towns and even into rural communities. In sparsely populated areas such as many parts of the Deep South, Infraguard probably depends on small firms and businesses owned by ultra-conservatives to spy on and exert mind control upon selected targets. Those targets are very likely to be people whom the business owners dislike or are afraid of for one reason or another.

It is not clear whether the FBI and other U. S. intelligence groups provide the names of the targets or simply allows the Infraguard to identify the targets. It is equally unclear whether the intelligence community does the actual “hooking” of the targets and then allows the handlers to perform their ESMC or whether the handlers may actually have a hand in the targets’ “hooking.” At any rate, the Infraguard’s weapons include monitoring targets’ computers and telephonic communication, physically spying on and “investigating” those targets, interfering with their mail, and monitoring the targets’ business and business contacts.

Buttressing the powers of the Infraguard, a Bush Executive Order signed July 17, 2007, allows Federal authorities to seize assets of dissenting citizens who “directly or indirectly” hinder Bush’s Iraq War agenda. If Bush’s tactics against war protestors were not a sufficient threat to American rights, on October 23, 2007, the House of Representatives passed legislation called “The Homegrown Terrorism Prevention Act,” which allows law enforcement to arrest individuals whom they suspect hold radical ideas BEFORE they “turn violent.” With powers that broad, it is not difficult to perceive that they also include using high-tech surveillance and neurological weaponry on those targets.

If the FBI, other U. S. intelligence agencies, and law enforcement do not actually carry out the electronic and mind control assault on American citizens and residents directly, they can relegate that power to those organizations affiliated with the Infraguard program. Those groups probably include the following: (1) Big business and research facilities, particularly those with government defense contracts, and even smaller independent, individually owned companies in smaller cities and towns.

(2) Some PACs, including civic organizations. (3) Some religious groups, particularly the “born again” types. (4) Perhaps even intelligence-sharing foreign countries, such as Israel, which often operates through its subservient American organizations such as the B’nai B’rith, American Israel PAC (AIPAC), the Jewish Defense League, and the Anti-Defamation League. Those organizations are known to have maintained “hit lists” for many years. (5) Perhaps even segments of the medical community. (6) Almost certainly law enforcement.

The perpetrators of ESMC as well as the means they use to apply it have to be known by the U. S. Government. Bill McIntosh, an ex-U. S. Navy defense employee and also a longtime target, authored a carefully researched paper on directed energy in which he says that the Defense Advanced Projects Research Agency (DARPA) conducted experiments in the late 1960’s on the health and psychological effects of low intensity microwaves. He quotes Richard Cesaro, Director of DARPA, as saying that the program’s initial goal was to: “. . . discover whether a carefully controlled microwave signal could influence the mind” to be used “for potential weapons applications.”

The Department of Homeland Security has more recently created “Fusion Centers,” supposedly to “share information and intelligence [with state and local organizations] within their jurisdictions as well as with the federal government.” At this time (2009), it has about sixty centers and plans to create others. Those sixty centers probably coincide with the sixty FBI field offices. The word “fusion” means melting together. The Centers do indeed fuse units widely dispersed over the entire national territory of the United States of America. Big Brother has you covered. DHS intelligence officers operate in Fusion Centers in twenty-four states, including my state of Louisiana, and also in the District of Columbia. Plans call for more than a hundred federal professionals at those centers by the end of this year (2009). Much of the communication between the DHS and the centers is classified “secret.”

The Infraguard and the Fusion Centers count on local groups and law enforcement to support the government’s increasing surveillance of and interference with American citizens’ everyday activities. Those organizations along with the FBI and other intelligence and law enforcement operatives represent an overwhelming presence of Big Brother in the lives of all Americans. Although surveillance alone does not constitute electronic and mind control assault, consider how simple it would be to take constant surveillance to the next step in parceling targets to vigilante-type groups of trained handlers for physical and neurological torture.

I suspect, in fact, that there may be two distinct parties involved in electronic torture and mind control: (1) The major party actually “hooks” the mind through the still-secret device and method. That organization will almost certainly be elements within the FBI or some other Federal intelligence agency or agents of foreign governments. I believe that that organization also selects the targets, but it may also allow lists of names to be submitted to them for targeting. Rank and file FBI and other intelligence agents may only be vaguely aware of the electronic assault and mind control system; however, higher officials and certainly those involved with Infraguard and the Fusion Centers have to be knowledgeable of it.

The Handlers

(2) After the first party hooks the targets, it turns the actual electronic torture and mind control activities over to a second group, the actual "handlers." The handlers themselves probably do not know the intricacies of how targets are hooked. They only carry out the techniques of electronic torture and mind control on the targets. However, as the handlers work under the FBI and intelligence umbrella, they must have security clearances and be sworn to secrecy. That almost certainly limits those handlers to ex-, retired, and perhaps even current law enforcement officers, ex-military, and ex- and retired Federal employees.

The handlers work in teams, and the members of those teams will not change, for they depend on continuity to capitalize on their knowledge of the target -- his contacts, his business affairs, his behavior pattern, and his thoughts. There will be at least three handlers, so that working in eight-hour shifts they can monitor the target twenty-four hours a day. There may be more handlers working shorter shifts. There will also be an alternate or two, who are familiar with the target, in case a regular member of the handler team falls sick or has to attend an urgent matter.

It is very important for all handlers to know everything possible about the target. Thus, members of the handler team will know each other well, and they will discuss among themselves their actions and the target's reactions. Handlers may even consist of several family members working together. However, the handlers may not necessarily know all of the accomplices who assist them in gang stalking and other activities.

The handlers' operational sites will probably differ from locality to locality, depending on the identity of the handlers. If law enforcement is directly involved, secure departments of police stations and sheriff's offices may be utilized. As law enforcement facilities operate 24/7, round-the-clock activities by handlers would go unnoticed. If individuals outside of law enforcement work as handlers, their operational sites may be located in safe sections of businesses, communications providers' facilities, and private residences. There is a possibility that the handlers do not have to be physically located at a single site but are perhaps linked by remote through a shared computer and shared equipment.

It should be obvious to any TI that his handlers are professionally trained in the application of their electronic torture and mind control methods. It should also be abundantly clear that psychologists and psychiatrists had a hand in developing those skills and training those handlers. After all, that group assisted the CIA and the US military in developing interrogation and torture methods used against Guantánamo detainees, a program approved by The American Psychological Association.

The unending remote-operated electronic assault and mind control activities, often accompanied and re-enforced by gang stalking, are enormously labor intensive and costly. The sponsors of those efforts spend millions on each target. Would a company or business spend that much money on a single individual? Hardly. However, if the company or group receives secret funding from the federal government, that expenditure could be kept hidden. Some PACs and religious groups, working under government protection and with government funding, would also provide an excellent cover for state-sponsored domestic terrorism.

No stalking activity, whether conventional or electronic, can be carried out without a conspiracy. That conspiracy probably includes the following elements: (1) Go-betweens, or liaison agents, representing the powerbrokers who make the equipment available, supply names of targets, and recruit, train, and pay the handlers. Those go-betweens are probably the same agents at the FBI field offices who coordinate with the Infraguard and Fusion Centers. (2) Handlers, who actually carry out the electronic and mind control activities, and (3) Accomplices, who play only support roles as ground stalkers and may not even be aware of electronic stalking and mind control.

Targets suffer from indescribable physical and psychological torture. Yet, they can get some small satisfaction out of the fact that the handlers, who are obviously already seriously disturbed individuals, gradually become more psychologically ill and socially maladjusted the longer they ply their evil work. Over the years, the torture and voyeurism that they employ weighs upon their degenerate minds. Although they obviously enjoy making people suffer and receive tangible rewards for their efforts, they become obsessed by their activities, and their sick handiwork eventually leaves them as mentally affected as their victims.

The Handlers' Accomplices

Electronic and mind control assailants also often depend on local accomplices to help with their aims. I classify the accomplices as active and passive. The first group actively participates in street theatrics, gang stalking, and entering targets' houses; the second group knows what is going on but keeps quiet. Unknown persons have entered my house in my absence on several occasions and taken items and rearranged other items. In October of 2008 while I was away on a several-day trip, someone entered my house and took from the center of my bed a round magnet with which I always sleep that measures two inches in diameter by a half inch in thickness. That magnet never leaves my bed and my house. When I change sheets, it goes right back into the bed. The assailants' purpose was doubtlessly to enter again while I was gone and replace the magnet, either in its normal location or in a nearby location, to make me think that I was losing my mind, one of the pervs' main objectives. Targets often call that tactic "gas lighting." Surely enough, I found the magnet in January, 2009 in the back of a little-used closet.

Accomplices of the ESMC perpetrators perform the actual foot work. Many of the accomplices work in legitimate businesses such as delivery organizations. In my case, UPS has failed to deliver at least five items that I ordered or that someone was sending to me. Two of the items were returned to the senders without my being notified. Never once did a UPS driver leave a notice on my door or in my mailbox that he had attempted to deliver packages. Accomplices also work in the postal system, telecommunications companies, especially local internet providers, and other legitimate businesses.

They local helpers of the ESMC assailants do not forcefully enter houses of targets but use master keys that open any locks. Likewise, they will never steal any item of great value. After gaining entry, the accomplices will rearrange items in the house or place them in locations where the target would never put them. Their mission is: to make the victim think that he is going crazy; to let the target know that they have the power to enter whenever they wish; to remind the target that he is under constant watch; and to frighten or intimidate the target. They once dropped a 9 volt battery and six AA batteries into my garbage disposal, which I discovered when I turned on the disposal. The batteries had come from a night table drawer where I keep them. That meant that the accomplices had inspected every area of my house and had gone through all of my belongings.

Items taken will often consist of anything that they believe might be helpful in their mind control efforts. For example, on one occasion, intruders stole from my desk a roster of an English-as-a-Second-Language class that I had taught. That theft probably represented additional sleuthing into people whom I know, as they often mention names when they talk to me telepathically.

State-Sponsored Domestic Terrorism

Why have electronic stalkers and mind control artists and their accomplices not been caught? They will be. It is only a matter of time, perhaps a short time. However, their evil has long gone undetected and unpunished because of the following reasons.

-- They operate in total secrecy; therefore, their locations are unknown. The handlers probably take an oath of secrecy. Otherwise, one of the handlers tells a relative who tells a friend and soon the truth is out.

-- They employ a method or methods of electronic harassment and mind control not yet fully understood. There are those researchers who believe that handlers use, in addition to microchips, other means to communicate with the victims' brains. Whatever method is used, it will require some type of transmitter/receiver, although those instruments may function slightly differently.

-- Their electronic stalking and mind control activities leaves little or no evidence. A part of the whole scheme is to operate in a manner that leaves no trace of evidence that could lead investigators to the perpetrators. The handlers count on victims not having tangible evidence to submit with their complaints of ESMC. Without proof of assault, of course, law enforcement has either the pretext not to investigate or finds little cause to investigate.

-- Victims are reluctant to make complaints, as they have no proof of assault and cannot identify the assailants and do not want to appear foolish.

-- Psychiatrists, doctors, and others in the medical community do not recognize the existence of ESMC. Indeed, if they acknowledge that patients who suffer ESMC are not paranoid schizophrenic, they then find themselves unable to treat those symptoms in the traditional psychiatric manner.

-- Law enforcement has been almost completely uncooperative.

The cowardly sneaks who carry out ESMC are textbook cases of domestic terrorists. In addition to committing terrorism, the stalkers are guilty of (1) stalking, (2) harassing with malicious intent, (3) coercion (in attempting to make the victim do things that he/she does not want to do with their mind control methods), (4) psychological and virtual rape, (5) breaking and entering (which they often do to intimidate the victims by unlocking locked doors, turning back clocks, moving items in rooms, hiding other items, etc.), (6) burglary and theft (which they commit when they enter a victim's home and take items to confuse and disorient the victim), (7) recording a victim's conversations without his/her consent, (8) peeping tom-ism (through their ability to view the victim), (9) assault and battery (by using electric shock, etc. against the victims), (10) slander (by circulating false rumors and stories that lack proof about the victim), (11) libel (when those rumors and stories are put into print in the form of emails, etc), (12) computer hacking and phone tapping, (13) conspiracy, (14) in some cases, blackmail and extortion, (15) first degree murder (when a victim suffers a fatal car crash because of sleep deprivation), and (16) attempted murder (when their plans do not succeed). Their list of crimes will put them away for the remainder of their evil lives.

In addition, the domestic terrorists violate FCC and other laws regarding the illegal use of electronic equipment. However, they will NOT engage in credit card fraud, identity theft, extortion, blackmail, or any other activity that will force them to communicate in writing or that will be traceable. Should that happen, the FBI and local law enforcement would be forced to look into those crimes and record them as crimes.

Keep in mind that electronic assault and mind control contains two elements: (1) electronic harassment and (2) mind control. The first element is often conducted from close range by persons using homemade or easily purchased electronic devices. Those criminals may live next door or in an adjoining apartment. The target will often have a good idea of the perpetrator's identity and may even also be able to gather sufficient evidence to bring suit against that individual or individuals. Electronic harassment is very often linked to gang stalking. Those acts can oftentimes be recorded on videotape and presented as evidence although the victim probably cannot count on the authorities for much assistance. Electronic harassment is also conducted by remote.

On the other hand, mind control, which also invariably includes electronic assault, leaves no evidence and the perpetrators are unknown. The perpetrators operate by remote, perhaps over very long distances, and leave no trace of their work. I have not yet communicated with any mind control target who has been victimized in a traceable and prosecutorial manner.

U. S. Intelligence: the NSA, FBI, CIA

Does the U. S. intelligence community know about ESMC and how it works? A resounding yes. A journalist in a July 2008 Yahoo news article wrote about visiting Guantanamo and interviewing some of the detainees. One of them was Omar Khadr, an Islamic Canadian who was only fifteen years old when he was captured in Afghanistan in 2002 and brought there. Omar told the interviewer tearfully that he had lost both arms and both legs; yet, the boy was in perfectly sound physical condition. Interrogators and brain control experts from the CIA, DOD, and other U. S. intelligence agencies had taken control of his mind and had convinced him that he had no arms or legs. As I write, Gitmo prisoners are being allowed trials by Federal judges. However, Khadr's lawyer warned that he is almost a basket case. His prison torturers doubtlessly erased any memory in his mind of his neurological torture.

In my overseas work, I knew many CIA types, who posed as businessmen, employees of international voluntary agencies, missionaries and other clergy, and other non-governmental workers. In addition, each embassy and its official appendages provide cover for CIA agents. In general, I thought that those individuals had far more human defects than virtues.

I praise President Obama for condemning torture by those elements. As targeted individuals can attest, the government has long had the capability to obtain involuntary information from persons by remote mind control. Thus, the torture of detainees, supposedly to obtain crucial information, represents only a sadistic excuse by torturers with otherwise little authority and decision-making power to carry out the evil in their twisted minds.

The mind control handlers operate by remote. Thus, some type of instrument, or receiver/transmitter must be used to make contact with the victim's brain. That instrument may be a scanner, ham radio, or a clandestine radio station guided by GPS. Regardless of the type of device, it must operate along a particular frequency, a frequency that can pick up the electromagnetic pulses of the human brain. If a radio is used, that frequency must necessarily be blocked. If not, any listener could happen upon that frequency and hear the whisperings and other mind control operations of the handlers, blowing the entire operations. If it is indeed a blocked frequency, the local law enforcement, the FBI, and the FCC have to know about and approve it, additional proof that law enforcement has to know about ESMC.

Since 9/11 the Federal Government has monitored all radio frequencies to prevent terrorists from communicating with each other. Intelligence routinely scans the air waves for suspicious activity. It is an inescapable fact, then, that the Federal government has to know about electronic stalking and mind control. If the Federal, state, and local law enforcement are not involved directly in ESMC, their unwillingness to investigate makes them knowing accomplices.

I live in a rural area in Ouachita Parish (county) in north central Louisiana. In late 2006, not trusting the local authorities, I made a trip to the nearby city of Shreveport to seek out the FBI to make a complaint about the electronic stalking and mind control activities. I outlined verbally to one of the agents what was happening. I also gave the agent a CD with parts of my journal and my thoughts about those effects. In fairness to the agent, I must reveal that I also showed him several items from my house that my handlers had caused me to believe were bugged. (He did not examine those items but pretended to make a note about them.) Later, I realized that the “bugs” were simply part of the handlers’ mind control games; the agent did not know that the items were NOT bugged. The agent asked me only two questions: was I homosexual and was I being blackmailed? Those questions strongly suggest to me that that particular group is being targeted with ESMC for purposes of blackmail, extortion, and perhaps annihilation and that the FBI is well aware of that exploitation. Naturally, I heard nothing else from that meeting. I visited that office a second time early in 2007 with the same result.

The refusal of the FBI to listen seriously to complainants and to investigate their claims indicts that agency. An electronic stalking victim whom I later met in person had also recurred to the FBI to complain. The victim told me that the agent to whom she made her complaint said with a grin: “Makes you feel like you’ve got nowhere to turn, huh?” She stated that “He was quite aware of what I was experiencing.” That victim, a grandmother and a very soft spoken, almost timid person, had worked for a single telecommunications company for thirty-five years before she retired. Like most victims, she lived alone. A policeman lived next door and a Fundamentalist preacher lived across the street.

For the sake of argument, let us consider that the FBI and local law enforcement just may be using electronic stalking and mind control, although illegal and inhuman, to attempt to combat crime. If there is any element of truth in that conjecture, it is not supported by statistics. Crime continues to grow at an alarming rate. Moreover, our government is based on the principle of “due process of law” and justice for all, including drug smugglers, murderers, rapists, and others. An indictment of crime and a trial by jury are the cornerstones of our democracy. When law enforcement becomes the judge, jury, and executioner by using covert electronic torture on targets, they trample on and make a mockery of those democratic principles.

I searched the internet for statistics concerning the categories of FBI investigations. The FBI has about 60 field offices and over 12,000 agents. It has divisions whose agents and clerical assistants continually investigate and surf the web for information on high-tech crimes and information relating to terrorism. The internet is literally full of references to electronic stalking and mind control, much of it in relation to terrorism. Yet, I did not find a single reference to the FBI's having investigated a single case of electronic stalking and mind control activities.

The FBI continually monitors and even infiltrates known organizations that engage in domestic terrorism. It is ridiculous to consider that the FBI does not know about high-tech harassment, the instruments used, and how the instruments work. Moreover, the FBI, Secret Service, NSA, and other agencies share the responsibility for the overall protection of the President, Vice President, cabinet members, Supreme Court justices, and Congresspersons. It is absurd to think that those intelligence agencies do not know about electronic stalking and mind control, how to prevent it, and, if discovered, how to neutralize it.

The subject of electronic stalking and mind control remains taboo. The controlled media will not touch that topic, which hints at a conspiracy between the media and the government. Only on the internet, where data is still largely uncontrolled by the power brokers, can one find information on ESMC. In performing my research, I found on the internet multiple accounts by and about victims of ESMC, and I corresponded with scores of those targeted individuals. Most of those correspondents appeared to be regular people whom one would expect to live next door. Many of them had braved the stigma of being labeled schizophrenic to complain to the FBI and their local law enforcement. Not a single case had led to an investigation.

There appears to be a sub-culture within the law enforcement and intelligence communities that endures regardless of which political party is in power and who might be the president. While other members and heads of law enforcement and intelligence come and go, that sub-culture remains just underneath the surface. It is possible that that underground, or rogue element, possessing the means to employ electronic torture and mind control, lent that method to various groups for their own purposes.

Local Law Enforcement

Like the FBI and other national law enforcement agencies, local level law enforcement has also been unresponsive to victims. There may be several reasons for that.

(1) Local law enforcement knows little if anything about electronic stalking and neurological assault. Officers on the local level very seldom receive training in high-tech crimes involving the human body. If they have received training, that instruction probably covered only the electronic effects and did not address the mind control element. In addition, most law enforcement officers, as well as the general public, simply cannot comprehend how twenty-first century technology can be utilized to invade the human mind and affect the human body.

(2) Victims can normally produce no hard evidence concerning their complaints, let alone identify their assailants. As law enforcement rushes to point out, that gives them little to work with in pursuing the assailants. It also provides them a very convenient excuse to do nothing.

(3) Victims are very reluctant to make complaints concerning neurological attacks for fear that they will be considered crazy and treated as such. Indeed, psychiatrists and others have convinced the world that persons who complain of electronic stalking and mind control must be textbook cases of paranoid-schizophrenia. I remained silent for three years after I knew what was happening for that same reason. When I finally did brave the stigma of being labeled crazy to present my complaints, surely enough the investigative officers apparently thought or pretended to think that I was crazy.

(4) Authorities are reluctant to publicize information in the media concerning electronic and neurological attacks, as many citizens would become alarmed for their safety. The difficulty in enforcing laws making citizens safe from high tech assault causes law enforcement to maintain silence. The assailants are quite aware of the authorities' dilemma, and they exploit that weakness.

(5) In some cases, law enforcement may even knowingly permit and sometimes even abet and actively participate in those stalking activities. If not, they may have very good ideas about people and groups that might engage in electronic stalking without pursuing those ideas. It is no secret that law enforcement officials in many places have "protected" certain criminal elements either for money or other benefits or out of sympathy for those groups. Vigilante groups are known to enjoy police and other law enforcement support and protection in some areas of the United States.

My experience with local law enforcement has been at best disappointing. After several years of enduring electronic stalking and mind control without having proof of it, I finally found that proof. Here is what happened. I read on the internet a victim's advice that aluminum foil could ameliorate some of the effects of the ESMC. Thus, I placed heavy foil over the three windows of my bedroom. At night I could hear what seemed like puffs of air hitting against the foil, sounding much like rain drops falling on large leaves of plants.

After several weeks, I walked into the bedroom one day without turning on the light, and I saw the foil perforated with literally hundreds of holes in the foil. The holes can only be seen when the room is dark and there is daylight outside. The holes ranged from pin size to perhaps a fourth of an inch diameter; the smaller holes seemed to be perfectly round; some of the larger holes were somewhat jagged. Those windows on that side of the house face almost due south. My satellite TV dish and satellite internet dish stand right outside those windows to pick up the satellite signals from the southern sky, a further hint that satellites may have something to do with ESMC.

I prepared a written complaint to submit to the sheriff's office about the holes in the foil. In the complaint, I was very careful to mention only the electronic stalking element, not the mind control element, knowing that any mention of mind control would only make me look like a crackpot. Before I had time to print out the complaint, the stalkers, who have access to my computer, changed the date from January 14, 2008 to November 14, 2008 (11 months in the future) to make me look crazy. Fortunately, in scanning the report before I submitted it, I caught that change in my date and corrected it by hand.

When I drove that same day to the local sheriff's office, I parked in front of the large three-storied building. The moment I stepped out of the truck I felt strong vibrations. My dog in her portable kennel in the back of my pickup truck also started to shake uncontrollably, just as she does when under attack from the electronic stalkers. That suggests that the sheriff's office either houses some very sophisticated electronic equipment that is manned throughout the day or there is an exceptionally strong electromagnetic force in that location.

I entered the building and found the criminal investigation section. When the duty officer in that office asked the nature of my complaint, I told him. Without blinking an eye, he told me matter-of-factly, as if he were an electronics expert, that the only way stalkers could bother me electronically was in touching me with something like a Taser. Instead of telling him that he was full of s--t, as I was inclined to do, I kept quiet and insisted on talking with an investigative officer.

The duty officer's remark, though impertinent and uninformed, was revealing. He had obviously been instructed by higher-ups to give that policy statement to anybody complaining of electronic harassment. That means that other citizens in Ouachita Parish, Louisiana had previously complained about the same harassment!

To lend credence to that belief, I confided in a dentist whom I had seen over the years about the possibility of a microchip having been implanted in one of my molars. The dentist did not appear the least bit surprised, which strongly implies that other patients had also told him similar stories. He replied that if I had one it would more likely be located in the soft tissue (the gums) rather than the teeth, suggesting that it may have been injected with a syringe. The dentist began condemning various government actions and government surveillance. I do not know whether he thought that he was patronizing a delusional patient or actually believed that the government was covertly monitoring the American citizenry.

The duty officer at the Sheriff's Office assigned a junior parole officer to take my complaint, and that officer promised to pass my complaint to the investigative section. A few days later an investigative officer, with an assistant, did indeed arrive at my house. The lead officer was supposed to be the resident expert on high-tech crime. I showed them the holes but did not offer any explanation for them. The officers showed little surprise, asked no questions, and made no comments. The perforated foil provided forensic evidence; yet, the officer did not ask for a sample for forensic examination. I never heard anything else from those deputies. Still more strangely, the senior detective received a promotion a few weeks later from sergeant to lieutenant.

Once again, in February, 2008, I was harassed non-electronically by persons riding four-wheelers at one o'clock in the morning in front of my house and shouting. I live at the end of a long, obscure, private dirt lane with a field on one side and a pasture on the other side, so there was no reason for them to be in that area. Furthermore, my house is the only structure on that lane. I prepared a complaint about that incident and took it to the sheriff's office later that same day.

After presenting the second written complaint, the sheriff's office called my son at his work place to tell him that the sheriff's office wanted me to undergo a psychiatric evaluation. When they called, I was actually on my way back home from visiting my son and his family. There was no reason to call my son instead of calling me directly. Moreover, I had not given them my son's name, his place of work, or his telephone number. I interpreted their action as a deliberate effort to intimidate me and to suggest to my son that I was crazy.

When I returned home, I visited the sheriff's office the following morning. They threatened to obtain a court order to force me to submit to a psychiatric evaluation. That appears to be law enforcement pro forma in cases of electronic assault. Although I knew that they could not justify that action, I agreed to the evaluation on my own terms, as I knew that the result would probably strengthen my case. I later underwent the psychiatric evaluation as well as a good physical examination in another city. Both examinations proved me very fit. After my going to much trouble and expense in getting the examinations, the sheriff's office has consistently refused my requests for meetings to review those findings.

At the meeting with sheriff's office officials prior to my having the psychiatric and physical exams, I showed the officers some notes that I had written on electronic stalking (no mention of mind control at this point), which I wanted to give to an investigative reporter for the local newspaper. In publishing a news story on ESMC, I hoped to flush out other victims in the area, as by then I was convinced that there were several other targets in the parish. The officer stated somewhat smugly that publishing the article would not be a very good idea, as (paraphrased) "investigative reporters have a habit of wanting to delve deeper into the matter." I viewed that as meaning that local law enforcement did not want the public to know anything about electronic stalking. Once again, the officer's statement suggested that law enforcement knew that other targets in the area were experiencing the same problem as I.

Shortly after that meeting, I got a call one day from an employee in the state-operated Elderly Protective Services, an office that I had never heard of. The Sheriff's Office had asked her to get in touch with me and visit me – still another evaluation. I realized that her visit might work to my advantage instead of the opposite, so I agreed to her visit. The moment she arrived and I greeted her I could see that she was puzzled about why she had been asked to see me. I invited her inside and we chatted for a few minutes. As she left, she told me candidly that she was confused about the request to visit me, as I was more mentally and physically fit than many younger people.

After undergoing the psychiatric and physical exams and still being unable to see anyone in the sheriff's office, I sent a certified letter to the state attorney general's office on June 10, 2008, asking that office to investigate my complaints. By this time, I had decided that regardless of the almost certain stigma, I was no longer going to hide the fact that I was a victim of mind control. Thus, I attached a summary of my experiences that included the mind control portion. I have both my mailing receipt as well as the initialed delivery confirmation from that office. I never heard from that office. They did not acknowledge the letter except for initialing the delivery receipt.

After more than two months had passed since writing the letter to the state attorney general without getting an answer, I then wrote to the Public Affairs Division of Louisiana State Police for statistics on electronic stalking and mind control, defining clearly both terms. That office answered tersely, "We do not have statistics on such incidents." That meant that my complaint, and doubtlessly those by other targets, had gone unreported by local law enforcement in its monthly crime statistics report to the state office. No surprise there.

Finally, on February 19, 2009, when another object turned up missing in my house, I wrote to the Sheriff of Ouachita Parish, summarizing three different intrusions in my house in my absence. I took the letter to the sheriff's office and his secretary stamped the date on my copy. I never heard from that authority. Again, no surprise there.

In my correspondence with other victims, I learned that in case after case they had sought out the FBI, state, and local law enforcement for help and had received none. Some of those victims even stated that policemen and other law officers later moved into houses and apartments near them. In all of my communication, I never found a victim whose case was seriously investigated.

In my case, although an investigator initially came to view the proof of ESMC, that visit was simply a formality. They probably came out of curiosity. Moreover, as the answer from Public Affairs attests, he never filed a report of his visit. I never heard anything else from the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Office about the ESMC case, and that officer and others refused to meet with me afterward.

Electronic stalking and assault (in this case, on both the body and the mind) are crimes in any civilized society. That I could not identify my assailants should not have been a factor. Many victims of crime cannot identify their assailants. Watch the "who dunnit" programs on TV. In many cases, victims are assaulted without seeing their attackers. Although naturally that makes pursuing the assailants more difficult, law enforcement is responsible for at least attempting to locate the criminals. In the case of ESMC, the victim should only have to describe their attack. They should not have to tell law enforcement who is doing it and how it is done.

Let us review our seventh grade civics. On all three levels of government – national, state, and local – there are three branches, the executive, judiciary, and the legislative. The legislative branch passes the laws, the judiciary interprets them, and the executive enforces them. Law enforcement belongs to the executive branch on all three levels. Most of the higher officials in the executive branch, including law enforcement on the state and local levels, are elected by the people. Thus, if law enforcement is indeed a part of the ESMC conspiracy, they are elected public servants using public funding to harass private citizens. In other words, the taxpaying victims are not only unprotected by law enforcement but they are also helping to finance their own electronic and mind control torture.

U. S. Intelligence and Law Enforcement Examined

The stand-back, hands-off position of the FBI and local law enforcement is understandable only if one considers that those authorities themselves may be involved in electronic assault and mind control activities. Ask yourself the following questions.

- (01) Who would have the equipment to carry out electronic assault?
- (02) Who would have the knowledge about how to use that equipment for ESMC?
- (03) Who would have a ready opportunity to use the equipment?
- (04) Who can communicate through a network that allows them national coverage?
- (05) Who has the authority to investigate people and obtain their personnel and military files?
- (06) Who has the financial resources required to buy the equipment, procure the handlers, train those people, and pay them for their services 24/7?
- (07) Who has the technical expertise to train handlers in electronic stalking and mind control activities?
- (08) Who has secure facilities where extra-legal records on the targets and information gathered on the targets can be kept?
- (09) Who has the authority and funding to send hundreds of investigators into the field to conduct interviews with people who know the targets and record those interviews.
- (10) Who has the connections to pursue victims from city to city, state to state, and country to country as they seek to escape the effects of ESMC?
- (11) Who can best start rumor campaigns and spread misinformation about the targets?
- (12) Who can prevent investigations by law enforcement into complaints of ESMC?
- (13) Who can encourage the medical and scientific communities to maintain silence on ESMC and psychiatrists to label victims paranoid-schizophrenic without looking further into the subject?
- (14) Who can summon the assistance of telephone companies, public utility companies, and internet providers in tapping phones and hacking computers of victims?
- (15) Who can command the cooperation of the post office and the package delivery services into misdirecting and interfering in other ways with the victims' correspondence?

- (16) Who has the human resources to fill the internet with lies, misleading material, and deceptive information on electronic stalking and mind control?
- (17) Who has the equipment and the capability of tracking a person within his home or any other structure and pinpointing any place on that person's body?
- (18) Who has the means to encourage neighbors to ostracize a victim in his own neighborhood?
- (19) Who has the power to direct the resources of the IRS, DEA, ATF, and other agencies on the targets?
- (20) Who has the capability of gaining access to the targets' financial records and credit reports?
- (21) Who has the clout to silence Congresspersons, especially the Committee Chairpersons, from ordering a national inquiry into widespread and increasing allegations of ESMC?
- (22) Who has the capability to garner the cooperation of elements of all ethnic groups against a target?
- (23) Who can make certain that no ESMC complaint is submitted on local law enforcement's monthly crime report?
- (24) Who has the influence to keep any mention of ESMC out of local newspapers?
- (25) Who has the authority to issue policy statements denying that electronic assault even exists?
- (26) Who has unlimited human resources to use in this manner?
- (27) Who can legally allow or block out frequencies over the air?
- (28) Who can subsidize the rent of policemen and other local law enforcement to rent an apartment or house next to yours?

If you answered "Law Enforcement" to all twenty-eight of those questions, you are correct.

Electronic stalking and mind control simply cannot exist without the knowledge of the FBI and other Federal intelligence gathering agencies. Period. That hints of a vast and widespread conspiracy that must necessarily include local law enforcement. That conspiracy is secret, well organized, and thoroughly implemented. It is highly possible that conspirators may include legally constituted and outwardly legitimate groups. If that is correct, the FBI, DIA, DOD, CIA, and other American intelligence units would have to train those selected groups, provide them the equipment and know-how to use it, and train and advise them.

A victim's only recourse is to inform law enforcement of the crime. Those authorities are expected to investigate and assist the victim. If law enforcement is the perpetrator, to whom else can a victim turn for help?

Electronic Stalking Versus Mind Control

Four main points stand out: (1) Electronic stalking and mind control pervades the United States of America, targeting victims that represent the make-up of the entire population; (2) Conspiracy, deception, and secrecy are key elements in those activities; (3) Perpetrators of that electronic stalking and mind control conspiracy operate on national, state, and local levels; (4) Many of those conspiracies operate with the acquiescence and under the protection of law enforcement on all levels of government.

Ordinary electronic stalking can be carried out by many people and groups operating near the victims and using home-made or altered devices and equipment that can be easily purchased. Mind control, on the other hand, is quite another activity, which requires high-tech equipment, a great deal of organization, intensive training, utter secrecy, and the ability to operate from afar. Amateurs can carry out electronic stalking; only highly trained technicians can carry out mind control.

The Role of Jails and Prisons in Electronic Torture and Mind Control

Experiments with electronic torture and mind control in so-called correctional facilities probably began back in the 1960's and 1970's. David James Fratus, a prisoner in the Utah State Prison in Draper, Utah, wrote of his experiences with ESMC in that facility in a 1988 letter. I include below some excerpts from that very long and descriptive letter.

"I began to receive, or hear, high frequency tones in my ears. Like the test pattern on a TV set. The volume or intensity of these frequencies is adjustable and some are so high and piercing that they've literally had me climbing the walls. You cannot imagine what it has been like confined to a cell 24 hours a day for almost a year [year] now, being brain blasted by high frequency impulses--no respite, no place to hide, and having not the lightest notion what was going on.

For the climax in this series of weird events, I began to hear voices in my ears. Voices that change pitch and timbre in contrast from being a cartoonish high and squeaky, descending through the octaves, including everything from sinister Darth Vaderish to basically normal characteristics. The reception of these voices into my inner ears is as vivid as though I were listening to a set of stereo headphones, and they are able to mix, match, and blend them in conjunction with the frequency tones creating a raucous cacophony of audio discord that disheartens the soul.

Now for the clincher. The various effects of this device have been progressively increased throughout this eleven-month onslaught, finally arriving at full potential with the end result being that I am now having my brain monitored by an omnipotent computerized mind reading or scanning machine of some sort. No hoax, no illusion to what I'm experiencing. These people have devised or acquired a specialized unit that reads absolutely everything--physical as well as mental functions, and are able to cause severe impairments and dysfunctions via this remote-control scanning device.

This scheme of sleep deprivation, headaches, and audio torments is relentless and being used to break down my resistance and wear me to a mental frazzle, permitting no mental privacy, berating and picking my thoughts apart, and attacking my mind with an insidious tirade of sickening innuendo and threats. They are going into my subconscious, or memory bank, bringing forth unpleasant memories long ago forgotten, and I am being punished for past as well as present indiscretions. I can think of anything from the past-- a friend or situation from 30 years ago for instance, and the voices will provide names and particulars. I have repeatedly tested and attempted to trick them on this. No way. They have better access to what's in my head with this nefarious invention than I do.

I can converse with my antagonists merely by thinking what I wish to say.... and I welcome you to the Twilight Zone!! How the hell is this being done?? They are using those frequency impulses to perpetrate some very vicious maltreatment on me. With the apparent ease of manipulating a keyboard, they can, with a flick of the switch, strip me of all energy and motivation to where I'm forced to lie on my bunk and stare at the wall like a zombie. I've been left in this state for weeks at a time--literally chained to my bed without the actual use of physical restraints, having not the energy to walk back and forth in my cell even a few times. For almost the entire eleven months I have continuously been made to feel low down and chronically depressed.

It is inconceivable to me that the technology of this awesome device can be unique and possessed solely by the State of Utah, but I may very well be wrong. When I first entered the prison in May, 1986, one of the psychologists who conducted my initial classification interview inquired as to whether I had ever heard "voices." That seems to be the key word around here. . . . The proficiency of the apparatus I'm dealing with is sophisticated far beyond anything scientists had apparently imagined in use at that time. I have since heard many references made to people hearing "voices" by both inmates and staff, which would indicate that these people were in possession of, and employing this technology at least that far back. This is what prompts me to wonder how they could have had such an innovative piece of equipment in use, operating with apparent perfection of technique, without the scientific and medical community in general being aware of it. Quite a puzzle.

At least two inmates that I know of have been badgered to the point of having attempted suicide as a result of this mental torment, and something stinks to the high heavens here! All of the staff, as well as a number of inmates, are aware of what is happening, so I can't fathom how it can remain, or even at this time, be a kept and closed secret human nature being what it is. They [prison authorities and guards] are so very smug and secure in the belief that they cannot be brought to account for these blatantly illegal acts due to their well rehearsed methods of official denial, isolation, and absence of witnesses, bogus psychiatric evaluations, and of course, the fact that this mental torment is being accomplished by a faceless machine, operated by anonymous antagonists from an unknown location and distance."

What happened to Fratus in the Utah prison represents the most heinous crime against humanity. In another case, the TV program "48 Hours" on August 16, 2008, told about Florida playboy Fred Kretsmer's spending eight months in a California prison and later hearing "voices." Kretsmer later murdered a woman. Did the voices that he heard urge him to kill? Several victims with whom I corresponded who also hear voices had served time in prison. Thus, it appears that psychological torture in prisons is widespread.

At least six or eight of my correspondents have served jail or prison time. All of them were subjected to electronic torture and mind control in those facilities. They believe that they were also targeted there.

However, only the most naive, uninformed persons will believe that state prisons exercise a monopoly over electronic torture devices and methods and mind control. Other elements of law enforcement must know about them. Moreover, how did those prisons acquire that technology in the first place?

Why use electronic torture and mind control on prisoners who are already incarcerated and removed from society? Besides the sick satisfaction that perpetrators get out of torturing helpless inmates, they may also be accomplices in carrying out the same ESMC methods on the American public. Keep in mind that Fratus wrote his letter twenty years ago. Imagine how much more sophisticated the equipment, the software, and the mind control techniques have gotten in the last two decades. And imagine how the spread of that evil has proliferated in the meantime.

Psychiatrists and Other Professionals

ESMC could not have been developed without input from psychologists, psychiatrists, electronic and aerodynamic engineers, very highly trained computer programmers and technicians, probably physicists, chemists, and pharmacists, mind control and interrogation experts, i.e., the intelligence community, and others. Nor could it have been developed without the knowledge of the FBI or the blessings of the National Security Agency. It is surprising that at least one of the scientists or government officials involved in planning the original ESMC techniques has not spoken out and revealed the sordid secret. However, the fact that participating in ESMC makes them criminals and subject to imprisonment is probably sufficient persuasion to keep them quiet. In addition, they probably fear they will also become victims of fatal “accidents” and other mysterious deaths if they talk to authorities or to the press.

One of the aims of the assailants is to discredit the target by making him look crazy, and they do indeed cause anxiety and other psychological problems in the target that drive him to a doctor. Unfortunately, the medical community either knowingly supports the perpetrators or plays right into their hands unwittingly. The family doctor will usually refer the target to a psychiatrist, who will then diagnose him as schizophrenic. The handlers know that once a target has seen a psychiatrist that whatever the target later says will be viewed with skepticism.

Do not believe for a second that psychiatrists do not know about electronic stalking and mind control. About a year after I began receiving the continual effects of ESMC, I visited the same psychiatrist whom I had contacted years earlier when I suffered from anxiety induced by the handlers. The psychiatrist had retired from the military and had opened a private practice a few years before my first visit. I left him a summary of my experiences and my thoughts about them. He read that summary, and the content did not at all surprise him, nor did he tell me that I was paranoid schizophrenic. (He had much earlier told me that I most certainly was not mentally ill.) Instead, he later called to encourage me to write a fictional book about those occurrences. I told him I would consider doing that but it would not be labeled fiction.

Not all psychiatrists are involved in the ESMC conspiracy; they are simply defending their field of study. Figure it out. If a psychiatrist actually believes that a patient is a victim of ESMC, he loses that patient, for a psychiatrist can only treat real problems with the victim’s brain, not what the stalkers do to his brain. To keep the patient, the psychiatrist is compelled to call the victim’s condition paranoia, schizophrenia, or dementia and then prescribe mind-altering drugs, which only compound the stalkers’ effects.

Often psychiatrists will recommend extended treatment in a psychiatric facility for victims who “hear voices.” That treatment is sometimes provided in the American Gulag, or the nearest insane asylum, for few targets can afford private clinics. Several victims with whom I corresponded had been involuntarily admitted to mental institutions because of their symptoms despite not posing a threat to anyone or to themselves. They always came out of those institutions worse than when they went in.

In attempting to defend themselves from unseen and unknown objects from an unseen force, targets do indeed often act in bizarre manners. Many targets are afraid to go to dentists for fear that the dentists will implant or inject microchips in their teeth and gums. As a consequence, their teeth decay and become a physical problem.

Other targets will not take shots or inoculations and thus subject themselves to fatal diseases. Still other targets will not discuss sensitive matters in front of TVs because they feel that the TVs are used to watch them. In my case, I built a wall of clear vinyl panels around and over my computer, leaving only the front open, believing that the plastic wall might keep the handlers from accessing my PC. Still other targets place aluminum foil over their windows to ward off the directed energy waves or whatever they may turn out to be. Those acts, however, do not mean that they are crazy.

ESMC Erodes Trust in Government and Democracy

I resisted for years the notion that my own government might have anything to do with my becoming a victim of electronic stalking and mind control; yet, overwhelming circumstantial evidence and logic tell me that U. S. law enforcement on the Federal level is either directly involved in electronic harassment and mind control or knows the identity of the assailants and either refuses to investigate them or actually protects them. Many TI correspondents trace their ESMC to the early 2000's, which coincides with the Bush administration (2000-2008). The Patriot Act not only gives U. S. law enforcement carte blanche to monitor American citizens but also excludes those officers from prosecution for the monitoring.

I used to be the type American whose eyes welled with tears whenever he heard the Star Spangled Banner. I was raised to revere the government. Moreover, I served in the U. S. Armed Forces Reserves and spent years working with the government. My ancestors helped found the British colonies, and my ancestors and kinsmen fought in the American Revolution. However, after my experiences with ESMC, I have developed a very strong distrust of my government and the executive branch in particular. I believe that it is patently clear that the FBI, the U. S. intelligence community, and law enforcement on every level either take part in electronic stalking and mind control operation, cooperate with the perpetrators, or cover for the perpetrators.

I kept quiet for over two years after I discovered that I was a target of electronic harassment and mind control, as I knew that most people would not only doubt my accounts of ESMC but also my sanity. Then I realized that the perpetrators of that evil counted on my remaining silent. In fact, targets' reluctance to talk about what is happening to them has set back for years our attempts to expose ESMC and the people behind it. Thus, I chose to reveal to the world my experiences as a victim of electronic stalking and particularly of mind control. I would urge other targets to do likewise, regardless of the stigma that they will almost certainly encounter.

In the silent telepathic manner in which the perverts and I communicate, I tell the handlers that nothing lasts forever, that times are changing and that they are "going down." The sickos are convinced that the establishment will continue to protect them. After all, they have engaged in the sordid practice of ESMC for decades. Once one of my handlers told me (subliminally), "I guarantee you that we are protected."

Nevertheless, eventually the sheer growing numbers of complainants will force law enforcement to follow the laws that they swore to uphold and adhere to the principles of the Constitution that they swore to defend. The general public is becoming more aware of and informed about ESMC, and targets are beginning to emerge from hiding to insist on law enforcement investigations. More victims are beginning to network on the internet. Until law enforcement acts, I invite other victims of electronic stalking and mind control and other concerned Americans to join me in the war against the demented, evil ESMC torturers and sociopaths.

The stability of the American government lies in grave danger. If the perpetrators of ESMC are from foreign countries and are attempting to create American dissidents, they have succeeded. If the perpetrators are rogue groups within the U. S. intelligence community and law enforcement, they have succeeded. If the perpetrators are domestic terrorists or vigilante groups, they have succeeded. Thousands of American targets of electronic harassment and mind control today distrust their government and no longer feel any patriotism toward that government.

I am a social scientist with many years of experience in performing research. When I analyze situations, I look for scientific explanations. Yet, due to the secrecy involved in ESMC, it cannot be explained scientifically. Nevertheless, thousands of victims with similar symptoms delivered by remote by unknown forces know the reality of their circumstances. They await an explanation and a resolution.

The Future of ESMC

I suspect that in years to come we will discover that many mass murderers and parents who kill their children are victims of mind control. Two such murderers have made news in the last few years: Andrea Yates, who drowned all five of her children, and Leanna Laney, who killed two of her young sons and left a third one incapacitated for life. Both women were believed to be good, caring, and devoted mothers. Both women heard inner voices commanding them to commit infanticide. One of the women said the voice was that of the devil; the other one, that it was the voice of God. The husband of one of the women worked with NASA. I believe that the voices were devils, but human devils. In addition, killers like the D.C. snipers, John Allen Mohammed and Lee Boyd Malvo, show markings of people under the influence of mind control perverts. In addition, the various school massacres may have been caused by perverted handlers whispering instructions into the student assailants' brains.

I foresee the day when groups of professional extortionists, blackmailers, and swindlers learn the secret of ESMC and turn it into a money-making scheme. They will do that by selecting targets who lead comfortable life styles, torturing them with their electronic and mind control techniques, and then making deals with the targets to stop the ESMC. They will also make money by offering their services to people who want to harm somebody whom they do not like. For a price, the pervs will "hook" that person, torture him, and provide the payer with videos to prove it.

Moreover, they can later approach the victim and ask for a large sum of money to “release” him. Thus, the assailants will make money playing both sides. My handlers have demanded from me $10,000 one time, $15,000 another time, and $30,000 still another time. Of course, I believe that in my case it is plain deception. The assailants will also sell information about other people obtained from targets. Handlers learn from targets the combinations to safes, telephone numbers of many people, financial records of others, the weaknesses and vices of others, and much other information that, in the wrong hands, could result in great personal losses not only for the targets but also from people with whom they associate.

I am very defiant of the perverts, and I go on with my life despite their electronic and mind control effects and the resulting annoyances and inconveniences. The handlers recognize that although they can bother me, they cannot beat me down. On two occasions, the handlers invited me to join them. I laughed, called them a few choice names, and told them, “Not in 500,000,000 years!!!!” They will very often test the target in that manner. That is pure deception.

Over the last few months, the handlers have “lasered” the outside of my right nostril. I can feel a distinct tingling in that location that is anything but natural. First a very sensitive brown spot appeared there and then a small indentation. More recently, I have noticed a white spot about a quarter of an inch in diameter on my chin, where the tingling also occurs. Like my nose and ears, that spot becomes covered with a film, except that instead of feeling crusty, it feels soft. The hairs of my beard are thicker and much more numerous in that small area. The handlers may be trying to cause skin cancer or melanoma. The handlers know that I use smokeless tobacco, and they want the cancer to appear to be tobacco-related.

Unless ESMC is stopped very soon, it will proliferate and we will see an alarming rise in the misuse of the technology used for electronic torture and mind control in other areas: racial and ethnic groups targeting persons in other racial and ethnic groups; religious groups targeting those in opposing religious groups or atheists and agnostics; rightist nuts targeting homosexuals, lesbians, and others following alternative life styles; the wealthy targeting people whom they single out, perhaps for the sport of it and the voyeurism involved; gangs targeting those in rival gangs; mobsters targeting young women and boys for prostitution; drug lords targeting people to turn them into drug addicts; politicians targeting political enemies; social purist psychos targeting for extinction the handicapped and others who do not conform to their concept of societal perfection; and world leaders targeting other world leaders. The more the practice of electronic torture and mind control proliferates, the more out of control it becomes. It promises to become the Armageddon that many people believe will eventually occur.

The Silent Massacre

When four demonstrating students at Kent State, Ohio were killed and nine wounded by National Guard troops on May 4, 1970, that incident created such international outrage that an incident like that will never happen again in the United States. Nevertheless, today a much more cowardly, widespread, and inhuman massacre occurs every day to a growing number of victims in an electronic and neurological onslaught. The Kent State students could at least see and face the troops' weapons; victims today stand helpless against a lethal unseen force cloaked in secrecy and delivered by remote.

Likewise, victims of today's silent massacre do not have an opportunity either to prosecute their attackers or face a court of law in which they might be able to defend themselves. They simply die a very slow death at the hand of unseen executioners. Most targets are plain middle-class Americans of all races, ethnicities, colors, genders, religious and political beliefs, philosophies, and life styles. Many of them, however, have somehow bucked the system or have refused or failed to fit into the socio-economic-Judeo-Christian structure.

An immigrant from a former Communist country recently wrote me about her electronic torture and mind control ordeal in the United States. Here is what she says in her own words: "It makes me mad, especially, because I came from the former communist country and didn't expect such things going on in here. This is a very, very big disappointment. Now I do not believe in democracy any more, and, as you, I guess that the government is involved in that too. I do know my abusers: they are my neighbours; There is also, a coordinator, as a former law enforcement officer living just opposite of my house. It is exactly as you wrote in your paper."

In a December 30, 2008 issue of Science and Technology, journalist Vic Livingston writes that a coalition of law enforcement and vigilante citizen operatives lies behind the attacks. He suggests that the coalition is funded by taxpayers' money and monitored by agents who probably fall within the Department of Homeland Security's jurisdiction. The author's electronic and mind control torture, mine, and those of many others first came to light during the George W. Bush administration, 2001-2009. Although my surveillance dates back many years, the electronic and mind control torture did not surface until 2005. In my case, the date coincides with Michael Chernoff's appointment as Secretary of Homeland Security. Chernoff, son of a rabbi, has very strong connections to Israel, pro-Israel PACs, and pro-Israel so-called Christian Fundamentalists in the United States.

Today, instead of shooting its citizens, elements protected by the government slowly tortures them to death by remote with directed energy and neurological weaponry that conveniently remains both unknown and unseen. In 1989, the United States Government reacted strongly to China's attack on unarmed dissidents in Tiananmen Square. Yet, the United States' silent massacre eclipses a thousand-fold the Tiananmen Square shootings, and it is carried out daily with complete national and international impunity.

Letter to the FBI

On the premise that certain renegade factions of the FBI, not the entire FBI, were involved in the electronic torture and mind control on Americans, I wrote to the FBI. Here is the letter.

Subject: Electronic Stalking and Mind Control Activities Performed on Americans

Dear Sirs:

Attached is an article on the above subject that I wrote under a pseudonym for online readers. In that paper, I pointedly state that the FBI and other U. S. intelligence services must necessarily know about electronic assault and mind control, yet they do nothing to halt that practice. Further, I write that FBI failure to take action against those domestic terrorists logically leads one to believe that the Bureau condones and perhaps even collaborates with those criminals.

I would appreciate receiving the FBI's responses to the following questions.

- Does the FBI officially acknowledge that electronic stalking and mind control, particularly the latter, are carried out by remote on selected targets in the United States of America?
- If so, does the FBI know how those electronic and mind control effects are carried out on those victims?
- If so, what action is the FBI pursuing to locate and apprehend the perpetrators?
- If so, why does the FBI not inform local and state law enforcement and the general public of electronic assault and mind control being conducted on citizens and residents of the United States?

Thank you.

I sent the above letter by USPS Priority Mail on April 14, 2009 and got a delivery confirmation receipt. When I later tracked the number on the receipt, the delivery status showed that the package arrived in Shreveport on January 2, 2002. In other words, the FBI field office in Shreveport intercepted the package and would not acknowledge the date. The letter was supposedly picked up in Washington, DC on April 20, almost a week later. Priority mail is supposedly delivered in a three or four day period.

Somebody, I believe pro-Israel employees of the FBI, monitors my PC and taps my phone, so that person or group already knew that I was sending the letter. Thus, the Shreveport FBI field office intercepted the letter to add material intended for the FBI in Washington, DC. The obvious intent was to discredit me and make me appear to be mentally unsound.

As I now write (May 25, 2009), it has been almost five weeks since mailing the letter. I suspect that no answer will be forthcoming.

What Targets Can Do

All targeted individuals are subjected to a barrage of criminal acts, some of which they may not be fully aware. If targets are true TIs, their phones WILL be tapped, their computers WILL be hacked, and their mail WILL be monitored. What can victims do to defend themselves, halt electronic stalking and mind control activities, apprehend the cowardly perverts who carry it out, and punish them and their accomplices?

- Remember that the perpetrators of your ESMC are the criminals, not you. Your total loss of privacy, even in the case of your most intimate thoughts, is frustrating. However, keep in mind that whatever the criminals know about you and your thoughts, they are not going to publish them in the New York Times. I continually laugh at my perverted handlers and tell them that I really don't care what they see, hear, know, or think that they know, or do. I remind them that although they can temporarily play with my mind, they cannot own it. I am the master of both my mind and my body.
- Remain positive. Despite the unsettling nature of the ESMC activities, targets must make a special effort to maintain a positive attitude, especially when around others. Remember that the perpetrators of ESMC are trying to ruin your lives. Do not let them. I start each day by stating how great the day is, whether it is rainy or sunny or cold or hot.
- Maintain your health. This is very important, as the perpetrators of the ESMC seek to make you a couch potato. They will whisper to your subconscious to binge eat, to watch more TV than usual, and to eat the wrong kinds of food. They will also whisper to you that you have no energy, that you feel extremely tired, and that you must rest. They will discourage you from making improvements in and around your home. Despite your listless feelings, go about your activities and make a point of getting plenty of exercise. A clear correlation exists between physical health and mental health. Defy the pervs. Make a concentrated effort not only to maintain your health but even to strengthen it.
- Do not discuss your ESMC harassment with every friend, family member, and acquaintance. They simply do not understand and cannot understand. However, if you have a perceptive, intelligent, trusted friend or family member who is open minded enough to believe hard-to-believe circumstances, let that person know what is happening. A confidant who truly believes you can be very supportive.
- Do NOT visit a psychiatrist. The ESMC assailants want targets to go to psychiatrists, knowing that the doctors will diagnose targets as schizophrenic or paranoid. Once targets see a psychiatrist, their credibility is compromised.

The evil perverted assailants will do everything to convince targets that they are mentally incompetent, including continually whispering to them "you are crazy." Indeed, the handlers' activities will often cause targets to exhibit the very symptoms that psychiatrists associate with schizophrenic and paranoia in attempting to defend themselves against forces that they cannot see and do not understand. However, the general public is increasingly becoming aware of ESMC, and friends and family members of targets who have been designated “demented” are beginning to see that those targets are not truly mentally unstable. In only a few more years, the psychiatric community will have to redefine schizophrenia, paranoia, and other mental disorders because of the unnatural electronic and mind control assaults that cause those symptoms. This will not occur, however, without a great deal of pressure from the outside, as psychiatrists have no way of treating remote-induced symptoms of schizophrenia and paranoia resulting from ESMC.

Resist any effort on the part of law enforcement to make you submit to a psychiatric evaluation. In our system of justice, targets should not have to prove that they are sane. Indeed, the burden of proof falls on law enforcement to prove that targets are mentally deranged. That is why authorities want to send you to a psychiatrist whom they customarily use and can depend on to render a verdict that is in keeping with their accusations.

Know that mental incompetence cannot be proved by your words and actions alone, and that the state and local law enforcement have no power to act unless your actions have the potential of harming yourself and others. If authorities do insist on your seeing a shrink, demand that the psychiatrist also possess knowledge of directed energy, electrical and radio theory, high tech communications, organized stalking, and even electronic stalking and mind control. Notwithstanding, targets should make every effort NOT to look insane by falling into the handlers’ well laid traps. Despite your frustrations and the handlers’ whisperings, do not act irrationally.

- Make special efforts to stay in contact with family members and friends, for the handlers concentrate on isolating you from society. Maintaining contact will not be easy. The handlers will have hacked your computer and tapped your phone lines. I recently got a call on my cell phone that showed the phone number of good friends, a man and woman couple. The person who called pretended to be the woman; however, the female speaker spoke with an accent and the voice was most certainly not that of my friend. Moreover, she ended with an exaggerated “good-byeeeeee,” which would have been totally out of character for my friend. That meant that the caller had used some means to make the call through my friends’ account at the communications provider; otherwise, the real number of the impostor would have showed on my phone. The caller probably wanted me to say something later to my friends about the call to make me appear crazy. I did not.

The handlers will cause problems with your computer and will intercept your emails to others and also those that come from others. They will also suddenly cut off conversations by phone, create static that makes talking impossible, cause your voice to echo (only you will be able to hear those echoes), and sometimes divert the calls so that their accomplices answer. Manipulation of your communications system is ultra important to the perverts' plan to isolate and frustrate you.

- Record the handlers' actions and your thoughts about them. Those thoughts will change over time as you learn increasingly more about your handlers. Their ESMC tactics will also change, becoming increasingly more complex as they go through their repertory of capabilities. It is very important for you to describe the perverts' electronic and mind control actions accurately and to record in great detail the sensations that you feel and your reactions to those actions. Record the day, date, and hour that particular actions occur. You may see a pattern in the timing. Their actions will normally occur in the evening while you sleep, as you present an immobile target for them and there is less electromagnetic atmospheric interference. Keep a flashlight, watch, notepad, and pen underneath your pillow or nearby to record those actions.
- Be observant. Watch people, places, and objects carefully. Record your reactions when you see anything that looks even slightly odd. Be careful not to set yourself up for the handlers' electronic and mind control activities. Usually ESMC leaves no evidence. The handlers, of course, count on your not having proof. Videotape anything that happens out of the ordinary: blinking lights, anomalies in your emails, etc. Record any unusual sounds: loud noises that occur in or around the house, etc.
- Remember precedents. Think back over previous events and actions. You had to have been targeted at some point in time. By recalling people, occasions, and incidents, you will probably get a very good idea about when, by whom, and even how you were targeted. Particularly think about any medical procedures, shots, and inoculations that you had prior to your electronic stalking and mind control experiences.
- Thwart the efforts of the handlers and defy them. As time goes on, you will see that certain actions on your part affect the capabilities of the handlers. You will also learn things that annoy the handlers. I enjoy singing monotonous ditties and repeating a phrase or a sentence for hours at a time (silently, through thought) as I work and putter. Laugh at your handlers and try to make their lives as miserable as they attempt to make yours.
- Stay alert. The handlers will attempt to make you do irrational things by whispering instructions and suggestions into your brains. Know this. Give much thought to your actions because of that. Remember that one of the major objectives of the handlers is to make you look crazy. Be very careful of their deception.
- Work to change the narrow mindset of the medical community about ESMC. I am quite certain that at least some psychiatrists recognize the reality of ESMC.

- Submit written complaints to local law enforcement. Get the complete name of the officer to whom you submit your report. It is very important that the reports be presented in writing so that YOU can word the complaint like you wish. Otherwise, the person with whom you are talking will write it the way he wants to, probably noting that you are nuts. Ask the officer to whom you submit your complaint to sign it. Others have done this and the officers have refused. If the officer refuses to sign, record that in your notes and let him see you doing it. Your complaints will probably never be entered by law enforcement in their crime statistics. Mine were not and neither were those of other targets with whom I have corresponded. Law enforcement wants no record of your complaints about ESMC.
- Contact your Representatives and Senators in writing. Petitions are meaningless. Write individual letters. It is important that your correspondence be done in writing (emails or letters), as their employees may include an accomplice "plant" who will not record and advise higher-up authorities of telephone calls. This will of course reveal your real name. It is time for victims to stop hiding and let the public know what is actually going on in this country. Our reluctance to do so has allowed electronic torture and mind control to go unchallenged probably for decades.

In addition, send copies of your letters to local and state officials, particularly the sheriff's office and the attorney general's office. Do not expect answers or acknowledgements of receipt. Unless overwhelming pressure is laid on the backs of leadership, nothing will be done. Congresspersons, themselves being protected, are probably blithely unaware of electronic stalking and mind control and the possibility of national and local law enforcement in that activity. However, they cannot ignore thousands of letters of complaint. There is strength in numbers, and the number of victims is growing every day.

- Seek out other victims of ESMC and network with those victims in comparing your symptoms, your thoughts, and information that you have found on ESMC. That organization can also become a meaningful support system for you. In the United States, Derrick C. Robinson, a TI and also a U. S. Armed Forces veteran, heads a pro-active organization called Freedom from Covert Harassment and Surveillance (FFCHS) whose address is info@freedomfchs.com.

Electronic torture and mind control have been employed for decades. Why have they not been curtailed? Here is why: (1) Targets have suffered in silence. Only with the advent of the internet have targets begun to perform research and reach out to other victims. Most of that communication has transpired during the last ten years or less. The internet is the last bastion of communication freedom. The powerbrokers have not yet contrived a way to limit and control its use. (2) Targets have wasted too much time in complaining to each other and have gotten bogged down in self-pity. That does not at all mean that we should stop supporting and communicating with each other; yet, that should not be an end in itself. Targets should become activists instead of habitual complainers.

(3) Targets have depended on law enforcement, national government, and international bodies to “investigate” and stop the electronic torture and mind control. They are correct in doing so; however, only those agencies of the government that are most likely to engage in ESMC or aid the perpetrators or allow them free rein in operating have the necessary expertise to “investigate.”

A Call to Action

I suggest that what needs to be done is the following: Stop petitioning the government, stop exchanging horror stories, and stop the backbiting and sniping among targets, and instead gather a group of scientists and experts whose purpose is to study the targets' stories, their symptoms, and the devices known to exist that could cause those symptoms by remote. Such a scientific study will lend credence to the topic of electronic torture and mind control that targets themselves lack. The study group should consist of an electronics expert, an aerodynamic engineer, a chemist, a physicist, a psychiatrist, an acoustics engineer hypnotist, a computer programming specialist, a crime investigative expert, a communications specialist who will know the workings of major phone and internet providers, and perhaps others. Assembling such a group will require much work as most of those persons named are skeptics. As mentioned earlier, the perpetrators very carefully avoid targeting scientists, doctors, and other technical personnel to discourage discoveries of their means and methods.

What can targets do to aid in the development of a study group? (1) Targets can identify scientists, doctors, and other people with special research skills and who either believe that electronic torture and mind control exists or are open minded about that possibility. Those people are out there. We simply need to locate them and enlist their help. (2) Organizations that represent targets can begin a special fund to finance the study. With the internet, actual meetings may not be necessary. They can network using the internet. If targets can identify the right people, those persons will not likely charge for their time and services in conducting research. The only cost may be in consolidating and publishing the resulting data. That report can then be sent to all 435 Congresspersons as well as major national and state government officials.

(3) Petitions achieve little if anything. Instead of petitioning the government to “investigate” electronic assault and mind control, targets should flood the offices of elected officials with letters and emails of complaints to create awareness and let them know the extent of the problem. The letters should perhaps be directed to selected Congresspersons. Each target should write to each of those people. Those elected officials will ignore a few letters; however, they cannot ignore hundreds of such letters. Once Congress is made aware, it will determine the next step to be taken. (4) Targets can prepare narratives of their symptoms and particular situations, which the group will be able to study for commonalities and clues. Try to emphasize the effects instead of guessing at the causes. (5) Targets can identify extremist groups nationally and locally that could have motives for conducting electronic torture and mind control assaults on them. Watch the newspapers, listen to news broadcasts, and keep your ears open to spot those criminal “vigilante” groups. (6) Join in class action suits against the government, particularly if you have hard proof or can produce a paper trail showing the probability of targeting.

Civil Defiance and Creating Awareness

Every target must become an activist. Not to do so subjects him for the remainder of his life to unending and increasingly violent treatment by remote by a yet unknown device/method conducted by unknown criminals. Law enforcement already knows about the plight of targets – and does nothing. The FBI and other national intelligence agencies already know about the plight of targets – and do nothing. Thus, targets must act defiantly to expose the evil of electronic assault and mind control to the general American public.

Here are some suggestions: (1) Place messages on large billboards along highways and on your lawns for the public to view. They may think that you are crazy, but, hey, what else is new! (2) Under the signature blank on your checks and other papers, put John Q. Public, Target of Electronic Assault and Mind Control (or Target of Organized Stalking). (3) Write a succinct account of your electronic assault and mind control (make sure that the grammar is correct and that it is well written), print fliers, and hand out those fliers to businesses, people on the street, and people in your neighborhood. Keep several fliers in your purse or briefcase to distribute when you see an opportunity. (4) Place ads in local newspapers that you are a victim of electronic stalking (the mind control is optional) and that local law enforcement has done nothing to attempt to discover the perpetrators. (5) Buy postage stamps with the American flag or the liberty bell and put them on envelopes upside down to indicate that you are a target and you are denied your freedom. (6) Join class action suits against law enforcement and other defendants if you have credible evidence of your harassment. Readers will probably have other ideas about informing the public.

In March, 2009, I put my own advice into action by preparing, printing, and distributing a flier about electronic assault. I intentionally did not mention the mind control portion, as readers in my area simply would not understand at this point. I also printed copies of the FFCHS flier and distributed it. Here is my flier.

SPEAK OUT AGAINST ORGANIZED STALKING

Most people get the idea that stalking is performed by a lone individual on another lone individual. While that is often true, stalking is also carried out by organized groups or gangs against individuals. That criminal activity is being practiced in Louisiana and right here in Ouachita Parish with complete immunity.

Stalkers consist of several or many accomplices who band together to harass an individual through spreading vicious rumors or giving out personal information, making wrong number telephone calls and actually tapping the victim's phone, hacking his computer, vandalizing his property, illegally entering his house in his absence, sabotaging his vehicle and equipment, and even causing vehicular and other accidents. Those attackers are careful to conceal their identities.

Today's technology has lent organized stalkers the use of remote-operated equipment to strike the victim from afar. The perpetrators can now use those devices to cause these symptoms: electrical-like jolts; chronic fatigue; sleep deprivation; cramping (usually the calves of the legs); violent tremors; burns, sores, and abrasions on the skin; pin-like pricks on any area of the body; extreme itching; migraine headaches; abnormally fast heart beat, ringing in the ears (tinnitus); and many others, including cancer. Distance provides the attackers anonymity.

Local law enforcement is unresponsive to complaints of electronic assault using remote instruments. Two deputies from the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Office visited a citizen at his request to view tangible proof of the effects of remote electronic attacks. The deputies gave the evidence only a cursory examination, did not take it for forensic study, and later refused to communicate with that person further. One of the deputies was supposed to be the local expert in high-tech crime. Moreover, the sheriff's office never entered that complaint in its crime report that it sends to Baton Rouge.

Electronic stalking happens to victims of every gender, age, racial and ethnic group, color, political thought, philosophy, religious persuasion, economic bracket, and occupation. A sixty-year old mixed-race grandmother in New Orleans videotaped some actions of her organized stalkers from her own property. Instead of arresting the harassers, the police arrested the victim. She is awaiting sentencing at this moment (April, 2009).

Do your own research by "Googling" the following key words and phrases: stalking (organized, gang, neighborhood); directed energy weapons, uses of RFID, electromagnetic forces, directed sound, targeted individuals, laser weapons, electronic assault, and microwave attacks. Some websites dedicate themselves to the topic of remote electronic assault and stalking.

Victims number into the tens of thousands. Some experts place that number at well over two million. If you are not yet a victim, you could be next. Speak out against organized electronic stalking and the criminals who employ it.

Targets may want to become still more defiant and join those patriots who refuse to pay state and national income taxes. Why pay taxes that contribute to your torture? Call it civil disobedience. Targets whose lives have been ruined have little to lose by taking the offensive. This is a war for survival, and a war has never been won by remaining on the defensive. Most targets by far are law abiding citizens who wish to live their lives in peace while preserving their privacy; yet, when law enforcement and the government fail them, it is time to consider other measures.

However, whatever you do, it must be done in a calm deliberate manner. Do not lose your temper. Do not make threats. Do not appear to be a threat to anybody or to yourself. Remember that your handlers want you to acquire a police record or have you sent to a psychiatrist for an "evaluation." Both go into your FBI file.

Summary

This paper is long. Let me summarize in few words the above material. Only governments and their power brokers (using taxpayer money) have the power, finances, manpower, and other resources required to invent, employ, and sustain in total secrecy the devices and methods used for electronic assault and mind control. Countries such as the United States, Israel, Russia, probably China, and others have long experimented with directed energy weapons and mind control. Only the government and the power brokers who control the government can direct the intelligence community and law enforcement on every level of government either to engage in ESMC or refuse to investigate it – perhaps both. OVERWHELMING EVIDENCE SHOUTS THAT ESMC MUST NECESSARILY INVOLVE THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

Secrets of the atomic bomb, space craft, stealth air planes, and other cutting-edge, high-tech objects were very closely guarded for years; yet, eventually those secrets leaked out. Much attention is being focused on electronic and mind control assault and a massive amount of information is being disseminated concerning its origin. Some of that information is probably right on target; other "planted" misinformation probably only confuses the issue. The point is that one day, probably in the very near future, the secrets of electronic torture and mind control by remote will also be revealed.

In the meantime, tens of thousands, perhaps hundreds of thousands of productive and intelligent American citizens fall victim of electronic and mind control assault. Their lives are ruined, and many of them lose their lives to that silent death or commit suicide. Most of those victims have already lost all faith in their government to protect them and have even lost their belief in democracy. I invite readers to study the cases of victims of electronic torture and mind control in the United States and then argue that those victims would be worse off under Chinese Communist, Iranian, or Russian rule than under so-called American democracy. If such electronic torture and mind control can take place in the cradle of democracy, why should targets support that democracy?

As a longtime victim of electronic and mind control assault, I am now also a dissident American. My handlers sometimes tell me telepathically that I am an extremist and un-American. I reply that I am now indeed an extremist and that if THEY are Americans, I am now indeed most definitely UN-American. For the last time in this article, I repeat that electronic assault and mind control CANNOT be carried out without high-up government knowledge. Certain members of the national Executive, Branch of the government have to pull the ESMC strings. Government leaders who sponsor this type of sick socio-politico operative can never succeed. Instead, they create many dissidents and malcontents who will eventually weaken this government and bring it down. If targets have violated the law, let them be formally accused and be able to defend themselves before their accusers. That is the American way -- or it used to be.

Post Note

On April 25-26, a group of members of the Freedom from Covert Harassment and Surveillance underwent detection examinations by electronics experts in Boise, Idaho. The person originally chosen to conduct the examinations backed out due to telephoned threats and shots fired at him. Two other individuals administered the examinations. The result of my examination showed an enormous amount of EMF (electromagnetic force) and found the exact frequency along which it struck my body and mind. I shall follow up on those findings. While I was in Idaho, the handlers redoubled their electronic torture and mind control efforts. No surprise there, for that state is crawling with FBI agents posted there because of the number of Survivalists who seek sanctuary in the back country.

I do not follow any recognized religious faith. To me, there is only The Great Spirit and IT demands no clergy, no human-contrived dogma, no sacred book, no church, no frills. Unlike Christians, I do not believe in “turning the other cheek,” and I will not forgive my enemies. Instead, I intend to devote the remainder of my life to exposing the evil of electronic stalking and mind control and bringing down the conscienceless miscreants who practice it. That WILL happen. If family members and friends believed what targets tell them, there would be such a massive public outcry that the Federal Government would have to reveal all that it knows about electronic torture and mind control in the United States of America. Unfortunately for the victims, electronic torture and mind control appears so incredible that most people cannot believe it.

This paper is based on my own experiences, a very long and lucid memory, my journal entries, in-depth and ongoing research, logic and reasoning, and correspondence with other targets. The opinions formed from those sources are my own. Should you wish to contact me, my email address is mindovermonster@yahoo.com.
